Mr. Leonard Mitzel, Chairman
Standing Committee on Legislative Offices Legislature Building
Edmonton, Alberta
T5K 2B6

Dear Mr. Mitzel:

I have the privilege to enclose the Report of the Chief Electoral Officer concerning the 2008 Provincial General Election, which was conducted on Monday, March 3, 2008.

Information on the target enumeration process conducted in each electoral division is included. Recommendations for amendments to the Election Act, the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure Act, and the Electoral Boundaries Commission Act are also included for review and consideration.

This Report is submitted pursuant to the provisions of Section 4(3) of the Election Act. Should you require clarification or additional information on anything contained in the Report, I would be pleased to respond.

Sincerely,

Lorne R. Gibson

Lorne R. Gibson
Chief Electoral Officer

REMARKS OF THE CHIEF ELECTORAL OFFICER

When I accepted the position of Chief Electoral Officer two years ago, I was prepared for a challenge. The 2008 Provincial General Election did not disappoint me.

Returning Officers and their staff members also met the myriad of challenges to make the election a success. They did an exemplary job, particularly when the increasing complexity of their role is considered. I hope that their duties, as identified in the following pages, will bring a better appreciation of the scope, breadth and importance of their responsibilities in running an election.

Public debate over the Returning Officer appointment process occurred throughout the election period. While I see an urgent need for change in this area of electoral administration, it is because of the partisan nature of the process and is not a reflection of the character or integrity of the 83 Returning Officers who served Albertans in such an important way.

There is another group that deserves our thanks. I commend the 15,000 election officers who accepted the challenge of working on the front lines of the democratic process. The work day is long and often fraught with challenges; still, they accepted the task from a sense of civic responsibility and a sincere commitment to community service.

I am pleased to see that these ordinary Albertans, who performed so ably, are appreciated by the voters they served. A survey conducted in the weeks following the election revealed that 97% of voters found polling place staff to be helpful. All election officers should be proud of their stellar performance in the eyes of the voting public.

This Report addresses, in detail, the concerns raised during the election. There are improvements that can be made with the proper tools – some are administrative, while many are legislative. Recommendations for legislative change, if adopted, would improve all aspects of the electoral process.

The 2008 Provincial General Election was run in accordance with existing election legislation. However, the legislation administered by this Office, both the Election Act and the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure Act, are in dire need of contemporizing, in order to provide clear and meaningful direction to voters, election administrators and political participants. The legislation would benefit greatly from the types of changes being made in other provinces. Many of these changes were first proposed in 2006 and further changes are being proposed in this Report. Just as critical is the need for a plain language rewrite to facilitate understanding by all Albertans affected by our election laws.

Despite the challenges, an overwhelming majority of voters who were surveyed post-election were content with their experience at the polls. In fact, 94% expressed satisfaction with their voting experience. The convenience of polling place locations, and the time required to vote, garnered even higher levels of satisfaction. This makes the many challenges worthwhile.

Encouraging voter participation will continue to be a priority for us as it should be for other participants in the democratic process. New initiatives have been launched to increase democratic participation, particularly among youth, and we are committed to exploring additional avenues to increase involvement on the part of all Albertans. This is the important challenge we face—and I look forward to leading the journey.

PREPARATION FOR THE ELECTION

Overview

Election planning began well in advance of the "election call" (the issuance of the writs of election) on February 4, 2008. The early stages of preparation focused on review of statutory direction, acquisition of necessary election material and identification of human resources needed to ensure election readiness on a timely basis.

Between October 31, 2006 and January 17, 2007, 104 recommendations for revisions to the Election Act and the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act were submitted to the Standing Committee on Legislative Offices and subsequently, at the Committee's direction, to the Minister of Justice and Attorney General. These recommendations were proposed to enable Elections Alberta to improve the service provided to electors. These recommendations were not adopted prior to the March 3, 2008 Provincial General Election.

On May 19, 2006, the first formal request was made for the appointment of Returning Officers in accordance with section 9 of the Election Act (the Act).

The budget presented to the Standing Committee on Legislative Offices on December 13, 2006 anticipated the possibility of a general election in the 2007/2008 fiscal year. The budget was approved as presented, on that date, allowing for the acquisition of necessary election material.

The request for Returning Officer appointments was repeated on a number of occasions following budget approval, to allow for necessary training and the completion of pre-writ activities.

Development of the Lists of Electors

For over a decade, Elections Alberta has had legislative authority to produce Lists of Electors using a Register of Electors; a database of elector information which is continuously updated from a variety of sources. In spite of this, Alberta continued to be one of four provincial election offices that conducted a province-wide enumeration prior to each general election.

Full-scale enumerations have become increasingly difficult to conduct. Electors have expressed concerns about personal safety and the possibility of identity theft. Enumerators have similar concerns about personal safety when going door to door. It is increasingly difficult to recruit a staff complement of the 6,000 to 7,000 enumerators that would be required to conduct a full enumeration, particularly given the current employment situation in the province.

An increasing number of electors live in multi-residential facilities that prohibit access to anyone except residents. While section 29 of the Act provides statutory authority for enumerators to enter these premises, practical problems exist in arranging access within the enumeration period. New solutions to data collection were clearly needed.

It was decided in 2006 to focus on the application of electronic updates to the Register of Electors database, in order to continuously improve data quality using an automated approach. Records of electors who had previously provided their information to Elections Alberta for the purpose of creating Lists of Electors had been regularly updated using a number of sources:

- Elections Canada provided elector data from the National Register of Electors, including additions and updates received from consenting electors' income tax returns
- Service Alberta provided address updates for registered electors who hold Alberta driver's licences and Alberta identification cards
- Alberta Health and Wellness provided address updates for registered electors covered by the health insurance plan
- Service Alberta provided names of deceased Albertans, to allow for their deletion from future Lists of Electors

Elector populations from the March 2005 and February 2008 Lists of Electors are compared in Table 1 to reflect the volume of additions between elections. Post-polling day Lists of Electors were issued in March 2005, subsequent to the 2004 provincial general election, in accordance with section 19(1) of the Act. Updates from the external data sources identified above were incorporated, on an ongoing basis, to produce Lists of Electors in November 2006, in accordance with Section 18(1)(a) of the Act. Updates continued to be incorporated to produce Lists of Electors in February 2008, in accordance with section 18(3) of the Act.

An overview of update activities since the release of the March 2005 post-polling day Lists of Electors appears below:

- The number of names on the Lists of Electors grew by over 300,000, which represents a 15.1% increase.
- Alberta's total population increase for this period was 299,555; indicating that Register updates have kept pace with population growth*.
- Over this period, the following updates were incorporated into the Register of Electors:
  - over 400,000 additions included newly eligible electors, moves into the province, and electors who had been missed during the 2004 enumeration and election;
  - over 262,000 elector records had some element of their information changed or added to facilitate record matching and ongoing updates;
  - almost 230,000 elector records were moved to reflect changes of address locations within the province;
  - over 100,000 deletions reflected out of province moves and the removal of decedents and duplicate names; and
  - almost 90,000 new addresses were added.

Net additions to the Lists of Electors, by electoral division, are shown on the following table.

Electors' cooperation, through the sharing of necessary data, is critical to the production of high-quality Lists of Electors. Effective database management, which is essential to the production of viable Lists of Electors, is largely dependent on three elements:

- Accuracy of elector's name: matching of elector records is extremely difficult if an elector alternates between use of a given name and a nickname. If matching is not possible, updates provided by existing data sources cannot be used to update elector records to new addresses.
- Provision of elector's birth date: matching is extremely difficult if an elector does not provide a birth date, because of the frequency of duplicate names across the province. Again, if matching is not possible, updates provided by existing data sources cannot be used to update elector records to new addresses.
- Provision of elector's physical address and mailing address: electors are assigned to geographic areas called polling subdivisions. Mailing addresses, such as box numbers, do not allow for this geographic assignment. An elector who cannot provide a physical address location cannot be assigned to a polling subdivision and therefore cannot be added to the appropriate List of Electors. At the same time, many electors do not receive mail at a physical location address. It is necessary to have both addresses, if they are different, to allow for both polling subdivision assignment and contact by mail.

In accordance with section 13(6) of the Act, gender and birth date information is used only for the maintenance and update of the Register of Electors. The data is not included on Lists of Electors for distribution to candidates or registered political parties.

It is very important to emphasize that elector records can be matched only if electors can be identified. Refining the accuracy of elector information, collecting missing information and optimizing matching processes are key activities to improving the quality of Lists of Electors.

Voterlink, the secure online registration system introduced in November 2007, allows electors to manage their own elector information to ensure accuracy and timeliness of personal data. An ongoing communications strategy has focused on the availability of this service (found at www.voterlink.ab.ca).

Appointment of Returning Officers

Sixty-five Returning Officers were appointed on December 19, 2007 by Order in Council 609/2007.

On January 23, 2008, Order in Council 44/2008 appointed 20 Returning Officers and rescinded two previous appointments.

On January 29, 2008, Order in Council 71/2008 appointed one Returning Officer and rescinded one previous appointment.

On February 4, 2008, Order in Council 76/2008 appointed one Returning Officer and rescinded one previous appointment.

On February 4, 2008, Order in Council 79/2008 directed the Chief Electoral Officer to issue Writs of Election to Returning Officers in 83 electoral divisions.

Review of Lists of Electors and Mapping Resources

Returning Officers provide critical local knowledge and are responsible for the development of polling subdivisions that will facilitate voting on polling day. In accordance with the Act, the elector population in each polling subdivision should not exceed 450. In addition, polling subdivision boundaries must respect communities of interest, typical travel patterns and polling place options.

Population growth in the province necessitated the addition of over 300 polling subdivisions. One polling station is established for each polling subdivision to accommodate electors on polling day. This, in turn, translated into a requirement for the recruitment, deployment and supervision of more than 600 additional election officers for the 2008 election.

Returning Officers were also responsible for the review, and necessary revision, of Lists of Electors to ensure consistency with the revised polling subdivision boundaries. This was a major challenge due to time constraints imposed by their late appointments, significant population growth and the availability of mailing addresses only in many rural communities.

Revised polling subdivision maps and Lists of Electors based on the reconfigured boundaries were made available to registered political parties, in accordance with section 18(3) of the Act.

The current List and map review process is largely a manual exercise at this time and, as such, is extremely time-consuming and labour-intensive. Implementation of a planned geographic information system will produce Lists of Electors and maps using a common data file containing individual address records and their assigned geographical locations. Increased timeliness, accuracy and consistency of the resources will be achieved through this initiative.

Target Enumeration

A target enumeration, originally planned for September of 2007, could not be conducted because there were no Returning Officers or enumerators appointed. Plans were then revised to have the enumeration commence immediately following the appointment of Returning Officers, particularly in areas of new growth and high mobility. Legislative authority for enumeration appears in section 21 of the Act.

Some form of target enumeration is used by most election offices that prepare Lists of Electors from a permanent Register of Electors, to supplement the automated updates incorporated into the Register of Electors. Because of ongoing, significant growth in Alberta, it was projected that approximately 25% of the province would be contacted during the target enumeration process.

The need for this volume of target enumeration was supported by a January 2007 List Quality survey conducted by an independent research and marketing firm. Survey results indicated that 76% of electors contained in the Register of Electors appeared at their current address. Based on that level of currency, it was apparent that the addresses of 24% of electors would have to be updated on the List of Electors.

Target enumeration plans were implemented immediately following Returning Officer appointments in December, 2007 and January, 2008. Enumeration activities began on February 1 in 78 electoral divisions, and were scheduled to conclude on February 18. Of the five electoral divisions in which a target enumeration was not conducted, effects of the time constraints were an issue in four cases. A target enumeration was not conducted in Calgary-Elbow based on the Returning Officer's assessment that no substantial growth had occurred following the 2007 target enumeration and by-election in that electoral division.

The priority for Returning Officers shifted to election period responsibilities three days into the target enumeration process when the election was called. As a result, target enumeration coverage was lower than planned. Over 170,000 elector records were moved, added or confirmed during the target enumeration period, which represents 7% of the elector population. Of these, almost 17,000 elector records were new additions. These additions, when combined with over 300,000 additions incorporated prior to the release of the February 2008 List of Electors, accounted for an increase of almost 320,000 electors' names since the Lists of Electors were produced following the 2004 provincial general election.

The following table illustrates target enumeration activity, including the number of updates and additions by electoral division.

Prior to beginning the target enumeration, and in accordance with section 23(2) of the Act, each Returning Officer was required to contact two constituency associations by registered mail to request names of prospective enumerators (one constituency association established by the political party forming the Government and one established by the political party, not forming the Government, that received the highest or second-highest number of votes at the 2004 Provincial General Election).

In most cases, Returning Officers did not receive recommendations from constituency associations and recruited enumerators independently. The legal requirement to contact constituency associations wasted valuable time in trying to recruit qualified enumerators. Once a sufficient number of qualified enumerators was found, Returning Officers began their training, using standardized resources provided by Elections Alberta.

Returning Officers used the Lists of Electors and mapping resources they had prepared to develop customized target enumeration plans identifying areas in greatest need of enumeration. They received guidelines from Elections Alberta to ensure consistency across the province, and were given the flexibility to identify additional target areas that would create the best possible List of Electors in each unique electoral division.

Some areas identified in the guidelines for target enumeration included:

- Residential areas developed since 2004
- Rental facilities with high turnover
- Residences on military bases
- Residences established to accommodate students who are ordinarily resident in post-secondary institutions
- Supportive living facilities, as identified in the Act

When target enumeration areas were identified, Returning Officers received preprinted enumeration records for use by enumerators. The preprinted records were used to confirm, revise, delete and add elector information. In new areas and other situations where previous elector information was not available, address information was preprinted onto the enumeration records to facilitate data collection and ensure thorough coverage.

Enumeration records were revised to capture electors' previous addresses to allow for updates to their existing records in the Register of Electors. This new requirement is important to the target enumeration process, since effective data management requires that an elector is both added at a current address and deleted from a previous address. This requirement added a new layer of complexity to the computerized Register of Electors system from a standpoint of programming, training, data entry and process management by Returning Officers.

A number of resources were available to assist electors. Enumerators carried a translation sheet which explained the purpose of their visit in thirteen different languages. This proved extremely useful in overcoming language barriers to collect information.

"We Missed You" cards were left at residences visited by enumerators to encourage electors to arrange for inclusion of their names on the List of Electors. For the first time, electors were given the option of self-registration using the secure online registration system, Voterlink.

Electors who provided information were left a "Thank You" card which advised them of the purpose of the data collection, including notice that their information could be shared with municipal and federal electoral agencies for electoral purposes. The cards also provided the Returning Officer's name and telephone number to give electors the opportunity to ask questions or voice concerns. If the enumerator visited after polling places had been confirmed by the Returning Officer, polling place information was also included.

Electors who could not be contacted were encouraged to have their names added to the List of Electors prior to polling day. Advertising directed electors to contact their Returning Officer between Saturday, February 9 and Saturday, February 23. Returning Officers were available throughout this period to accept additions to the List of Electors: from 9 a.m. to 6 p.m. on weekdays and noon to 4 p.m. on Saturdays. Returning Officers offered extended hours of 9 a.m. to 9 p.m. on Thursday, February 21 to accommodate electors who wished to have their names added to the Lists of Electors prior to the opening of the advance polls.

Challenges

The rapid growth in Alberta is a significant challenge to maintaining a current and complete List of Electors. An estimated population increase in excess of 10% has occurred since 2004 (source: Alberta Electoral Division Profiles for 2004 and 2008 by Alberta Finance and Enterprise - Statistics). This increase is particularly apparent in some electoral divisions: Calgary-North West, for example, increased by 54% in population between 2004 and 2008.

Time constraints were a challenge for Elections Alberta and Returning Officers across the province. Returning Officers in 82 electoral divisions were appointed between two and seven weeks prior to the commencement of the election period, resulting in an abbreviated timeframe to train and prepare Returning Officers and enumerators. The time constraints posed particular challenges for the 45 first-time Returning Officers, especially the 20 appointed less than two weeks prior to the commencement of the election period. By contrast, the majority of Returning Officers were appointed 13 months before the 2004 provincial general election.

In addition to attending training and reviewing their polling subdivision maps and Lists of Electors, Returning Officers are responsible for recruitment of an Election Clerk and Administrative Assistant, two key staff members who assist them in their responsibilities throughout the election period. Locating appropriate office space was another major challenge in the short time available during the pre-election period, as was the identification of potential polling places, particularly in newly developed areas.

The time of year was not conducive to hiring a group of enumerators to go door to door. Low temperatures, coupled with a very low unemployment rate, made recruitment difficult. Security concerns were raised by electors and enumerators alike, given the shortage of daylight hours during which enumeration could take place.

ELECTION PERIOD ACTIVITIES

Overview

The election was conducted on the boundaries described in the Electoral Divisions Act, Statutes of Alberta, 2003.

Order in Council 78/2008 dissolved the Twenty-sixth Legislative Assembly on February 4, 2008, and Order in Council 79/2008 signalled the commencement of the Provincial General Election by ordering the Chief Electoral Officer to issue Writs of Election to each of the 83 Returning Officers listed on page 154 of this report, pursuant to section 40 of the Act.

Key Dates

The election calendar posted on the Elections Alberta website highlighted the following key dates:

Monday, February 4	Issuance of the Writs of Election to Returning Officers in the 83 electoral divisions
Saturday, February 9	First day for electors to be added to the List of Electors in the Returning Officers' offices
Monday, February 18 at 2:00 p.m.	Last opportunity for Candidates to file Nomination Papers in the Returning Officers' offices
Saturday, February 23 at 4:00 PM	Last opportunity for electors to be added to the List of Electors in the Returning Officers' offices
Thursday, February 28	First day to vote in the Advance Polls (9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.)
Friday, February 29	Second day to vote in the Advance Polls (9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.)
Saturday, March 1	Final day to vote in the Advance Polls (9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.)
Monday, March 3 POLLING DAY	Polls open from 9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m.; unofficial results web-posted
Thursday, March 13	Official results announced by the Returning Officers in the 83 electoral divisions

Special Initiatives

Communications Strategy

Elections Alberta added new methods of communicating with electors to better reach the diverse group that makes up Alberta's electorate. The broad communications strategy was aimed at all electors, of all ages, from all parts of the province.

- Direct mail to residences: For the first time, cards containing election information were mailed to approximately one million residences, on two separate occasions. Both cards contained general information on elector eligibility and voting opportunities.

  The first mailing reached residences in the province by Monday, February 11; seven days into the election period. It provided information on dates and times for voting, as well as contact information for electors wishing to obtain additional information by telephone, email or online.

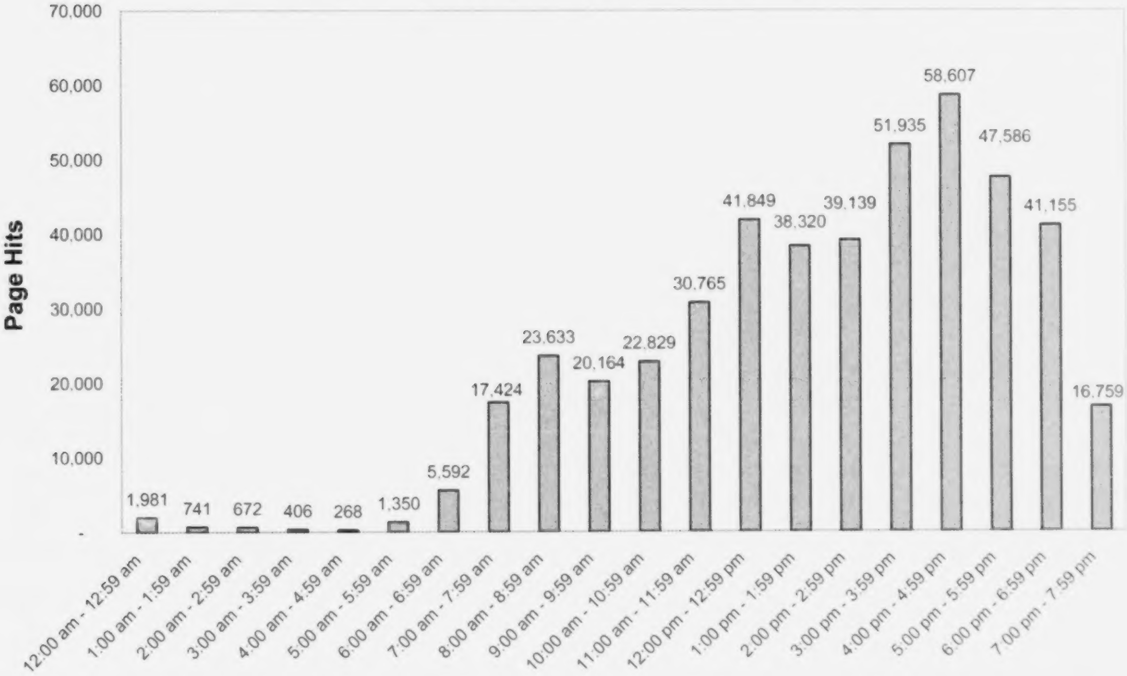
  The second mailing provided more detailed information by Monday, February 18; fourteen days into the election period. It included the assigned polling places for advance voting and voting on polling day; the electoral division in which the residence was located and contact information for the Returning Officer in the area. This information was mailed to all addresses held by Elections Alberta that identified a physical address location for which a polling subdivision assignment could be made.

  Cards directed to mailing addresses that could not be assigned to a polling subdivision reminded electors that "where you vote depends on where you live". Electors do not necessarily live where they receive their mail. For example, electors who had provided only a box number or general delivery address could not be provided with detailed information about where their assigned polling station was located. Again, the voter card provided information on dates and times for voting, as well as contact information for electors wishing to obtain additional information by telephone, email or online.

- Website: Elections Alberta's online resources were available around the clock. Entry of a valid location address provided the user with the assigned polling places for advance voting and voting on polling day. The website also supplied general information on eligibility requirements, dates and times for voting and options for electors who were away from home or who had other unique needs. Contact information for Elections Alberta and the Returning Officer was available to allow electors with specific questions to communicate in writing, in person, by phone or by e-mail.

  The Elections Alberta website was accessed over 630,000 times on polling day, with over 460,000 hits occurring by 8 p.m.

The following chart shows website activity, up to the close of the polls. Access to the website was available throughout the day, although performance issues were experienced early in the day.



Election Day Website Service
March 3, 2008 (Midnight - 7:59 pm)

- Radio and television: For the first time, an advertising campaign was launched to complement the statutory advertisements published in newspapers. Public awareness advertisements featuring two electors sharing comical reasons for not voting were developed to gently encourage electors' participation using a humorous approach. The radio and television advertisements received positive reviews and widespread distribution on informal networks, such as YouTube.

- Telephone: The voter information call centre was doubled in size for this election to prepare for the large number of callers requesting answers to common questions; most often guidance on where and when to vote. Call centre hours were also expanded so electors could reach an operator from 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on weekdays, 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. on weekends and 8 a.m. to 8 p.m. on voting days.

  Operators assisted over 18,000 callers throughout the election period, including almost 10,000 who called on polling day.

- Newspapers: As in previous elections, electors could consult local newspapers for information on polling places, dates and times for voting and voting opportunities for electors who were away from home or who had other unique needs, in accordance with sections 55 and 70 of the Act.

In Calgary and Edmonton, this information appeared as newspaper inserts, in both daily newspapers, on two occasions. To maximize the distribution, inserts were delivered by a flyer delivery service to residences that didn't subscribe to either newspaper.

Election information appeared in more than 90 newspapers in electoral divisions across the province.

- Corporate identity: New visual elements, as seen on the cover of this report, linked all communication pieces to clearly identify Elections Alberta as the source. This proved to be valuable in helping electors to differentiate between the sources of material such as informational brochures and where-to-vote cards, which were also issued by candidates and some third parties.

Online Voter Registration

The challenge of maintaining a database of current and accurate records for 2.3 million electors, in a province as dynamic as Alberta, required a creative solution.

Traditionally, electors who have not been added to the List of Electors during the enumeration process have been added during the election period, either through contact with a Returning Officer or by an election officer at a polling place. Both enumeration and election additions occur within a narrow window of opportunity and can be time-consuming due to volumes.

Voterlink (found at www.voterlink.ab.ca) is a secure online voter registration system that was developed in response to the challenge of maintaining accurate Lists of Electors for a growing, mobile population. Electors are encouraged to manage their own elector records as they become eligible to vote, change their place of residence, or change their name.

The online approach features:

- Convenience: an elector may access the system around the clock, from any location,
- Independence: an elector does not require assistance from an enumerator or other election officer, and
- Privacy: elector information can only be accessed by the elector using his or her driver's licence or Alberta identification card.

This initiative is relatively new and is expected to grow in popularity. It was introduced in November, 2007, so there was limited opportunity to generate public awareness in the three months leading up to the election. Still, over 21,000 electors used this application to add or revise their elector record during the election period.

Currently, the use of Voterlink is promoted by posters in registry offices and inserts mailed with driver's licence renewals and vehicle registrations. Other free distribution channels include welcome wagon baskets and flyers issued by participating members of the Alberta Real Estate Association.

On a weekly basis over 2,500 residences, on average, receive a Voterlink notice through SmartMoves, a package sent to people who have registered a change of address with Canada Post.

The Voterlink icon appeared on many websites throughout the election period and still appears on sites that actively encourage democratic involvement.

Emphasis will continue to be placed on the availability of this application to promote awareness and increase public utilization. It is hoped that all groups with an interest in increasing voter participation will assist in this endeavour.

Ballot Redesign

Electors received new ballots following a revision to the Election Act Forms Regulation. The new design, successfully piloted during the two 2007 by-elections, displayed candidates' names and party affiliations in white print on a black background. The circles in which the elector is directed to mark an "x" indicating candidate selection are the only white areas on the ballot. This assists electors in correctly marking their ballots and reduces the number of extraneous marks which can result in the rejection of ballots.

This effort appears to have been a success: the rate of rejected ballots (those which could not be counted because they were unclear as to the voter's intent) decreased by 25% province-wide, when compared to the rejection rates in the 2004 Provincial General Election.

Election Training

Each Returning Officer and two full-time office staff, the Election Clerk and Administrative Assistant, were offered standardized training provided by Elections Alberta. Written resource materials were supplemented by video training for Returning Officers who were unable to attend training due to late appointments or unavailability.

Returning Officers are responsible for training front-line election officers: the supervisory deputy returning officers, deputy returning officers and registration officers. In many cases, Returning Officers trained well over a hundred people in the conduct of polling day responsibilities using standardized resources provided by Elections Alberta. Sufficient quantities of the updated "Guide for Polling Place Officials", which covers polling day responsibilities of all election officers, were provided to election officers as a handy reference to ensure their success in properly completing their duties.

Staff Recruitment

Returning Officers were supplied with contact information for prospective election officers, which had been maintained on file from the 2004 Provincial General Election. Elections Canada and many municipalities also shared names of their former election workers, after obtaining the consent necessary to do so. This cooperation between electoral jurisdictions facilitates the recruitment of an experienced staff complement at municipal, provincial and federal elections.

Returning Officers were authorized to recruit additional registration officers in areas that were expected to experience an exceptionally high volume of polling day registrations. This was important in areas of new growth and high mobility; particularly if target enumeration results fell below their expectations.

In some electoral divisions with especially high employment rates, such as Fort McMurray-Wood Buffalo, staff recruitment was particularly challenging. Returning Officers applied their knowledge of the community, and connections to groups within the electoral division, to recruit a sufficient number of electors to staff all polling stations on polling day.

In Calgary, the media assisted in the process by communicating a need for election officers in certain electoral divisions. The effort was extremely successful. In some areas, prospective workers far exceeded Returning Officers' requirements.

There were almost 15,000 Albertans who accepted the challenge of working as front-line election officers to serve electors in their communities. Many of these people work at municipal and federal elections, as well.

The democratic process in Alberta owes a vote of thanks to the people who take on this challenge. Armed with a few hours of training, printed resource material and necessary forms and supplies, they work over 12 hours on polling day to ensure that electors may cast their ballots at a location that is convenient for the majority of electors. Their efforts are greatly appreciated.

If current recommendations are adopted, the recruitment pool will expand to include persons who are at least sixteen years of age to serve as poll clerks. It is hoped this will alleviate some of the recruitment challenges and assist to engage youth in the voting process.

Scrutineer Involvement

Scrutineers are another group of people who play a vital role in the democratic process in Alberta. They work on behalf of candidates, as observers, to ensure elections are conducted in a fair and transparent manner.

Before scrutineers begin their duties, they present election officers with a completed appointment form to indicate that they are eligible to act in this capacity. They also complete oaths at each polling station or registration officer's station at which they observe, to formally swear or affirm that the principle of confidentiality will be respected.

Because many scrutineers receive no training before beginning their polling day assignments, the Appointment of Scrutineer form is attached to a guide which defines their roles and responsibilities. Clear role definition helps to ensure that scrutineers and election officers work cooperatively and effectively together in their complementary roles.

Nominated Candidates

Nomination day was Monday, February 18, 2008. That was the last day on which prospective candidates were able to file nomination papers with the Returning Officer in the electoral division in which they wished to contest the election.

By 2:00 pm, when nominations closed, 407 candidates had filed nomination papers. The distribution of candidates by political party affiliation follows:

Alberta Greens	79
Alberta Party	1
Communist Party – Alberta	2
Alberta Liberal Party	82
Alberta New Democratic Party	83
Progressive Conservative Association of Alberta	83
Alberta Social Credit Party	8
Separation Party of Alberta	1
Wildrose Alliance Party	61
Independent	7

No candidate withdrew following the close of nominations and no candidate was elected by acclamation.

Special Ballot Polls

By legislation, a Special Ballot poll was established in each of the 83 electoral divisions. The poll is established to facilitate voting for electors who are not able to vote at the advance polls or on polling day. It is often used by electors who are physically incapacitated or who travel, work or attend an educational institution outside of their own electoral divisions for extended periods. Availability of the Special Ballot was advertised in newspapers, on election information cards mailed to residences and on the website.

Special Ballot brochures were distributed to stakeholder groups whose members tend to use this voting option. Brochures were distributed on a proactive basis to trade unions, post-secondary educational institutions and the Canadian Armed Forces to allow them time to share information with their membership. This notice directed electors' early attention to this voting option.

The Special Ballot is often viewed as a mail-in ballot, but ballots may also be completed in the Returning Office or hand-delivered by an individual at the elector's request. While every effort is made to accommodate all requests, it is a legislative requirement that an elector must request his or her own Special Ballot: it cannot be requested on his or her behalf by another person. This is to ensure that the Special Ballot is issued to, and completed by, the appropriate elector.

Electors may request a Special Ballot in person, by telephone, by facsimile, by electronic mail or in writing. The Special Ballot package uses a series of envelopes to protect the confidentiality of the ballot, and contains an elector's declaration identifying the reason for use, along with an undertaking confirming that the elector has not yet voted and will not attempt to vote a second time.

In the same way that each elector must vote within their own electoral division, the law requires that each elector must request a Special Ballot from the Returning Officer in his or her own electoral division and return it to the office from which it was issued. Although Special Ballot requests may be made electronically, original Special Ballots must be submitted to ensure authenticity and confidentiality.

Returning Officers sent Special Ballots to electors throughout the province and out of the country. Electors were able to request a Special Ballot at the beginning of the election period, before nominations closed, and were able to vote for the candidate or political party of their choice. This helped to ensure that electors had adequate time to complete and return the Special Ballot by the close of polls on polling day.

A total of 12,101 valid Special Ballots were received by the close of polls on polling day, providing a valuable option to electors who otherwise may have been unable to participate.

The current system of Special Ballot voting does not have the same built-in level of security as other forms of voting. An elector may obtain a ballot from a remote location, without the element of personal contact and resulting transparency that occurs when voting at a local polling station. In addition, an elector may apply for a Special Ballot without providing identification. An elector who is not on the List of Electors is authorized to be added to the List at the time the Special Ballot is returned. Special Ballots may be sent across the world in response to a verbal or emailed request, with no real opportunity to verify the identity or voting eligibility of the recipient.

Although widespread abuse has not been identified, this system is open to voting fraud. Several changes to the procedures for Special Ballot voting were made in this election to reduce the possibility of fraud and increase security of this voting method. However, efforts to further tighten the security of this voting method were limited by what is permissible under the current law. A requirement for Special Ballot applicants to provide suitable identification would eliminate possible misuse in reality and in perception.

Advance Polls

By legislation, advance polls were established in at least one location in each electoral division on the Thursday, Friday and Saturday prior to polling day. Electoral divisions that cover a large geographic area offered up to four advance poll locations to reduce travel requirements and ensure elector convenience. In seven electoral divisions, additional locations were established with the approval of the Chief Electoral Officer.

Advance polls were open from 9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on February 28, 29 and March 1, 2008, at sites that offered level access. Returning Offices were used, where appropriate.

Advance polls served electors who were unable to vote on polling day due to:

- physical incapacity,
- absence,
- involvement as an election officer, candidate, official agent or scrutineer whose official duties precluded their attendance at the polling place established for their own polling subdivision, or
- an inability to vote on polling day.

A total of 64,332 valid ballots were cast at 162 advance polls.

Mobile Polls

By legislation, mobile polls were established on polling day in treatment centres and in supportive living facilities with ten or more resident inpatients or electors, where facility staff assessed the service as appropriate.

Mobile poll brochures were distributed to facility administrators early in the election period to inform them of the mobile poll process. Posters were provided to inform residents of the time and location for mobile polling within their facility to allow electors to plan appropriately for polling day.

Mobile polls accommodated electors within the facilities during hours agreed upon by facility staff, and were conducted in a fixed location, or by going bed-to-bed, or by using both methods, to best meet electors' needs.

Electors identified by the facility staff as being well enough to vote are eligible to vote in the electoral division in which the facility is located. In accordance with legislation, facility staff can restrict participation to the deputy returning officer, poll clerk, interpreter, and facility representative, if appropriate for the well-being of the facility's electors.

A total of 19,868 valid ballots were cast at 513 mobile poll locations.

Polling Day

By legislation, polls were open from 9:00 a.m. to 8:00 p.m. on Monday, March 3, 2008. There were 6,106 polling stations established across the province, each staffed by a deputy returning officer and poll clerk. Supervisory deputy returning officers were hired in polling places with multiple polling stations to assist in directing electors to the correct polling station. Registration officers were available to register electors whose names were not on the Lists of Electors, which expedited the process for all electors.

Election officers were responsible for setting up the polling places, taking the vote, and registering electors who were not on the Lists of Electors. The role of election officers also includes the collection of information that will be used to update the Register of Electors. Polling day is an excellent opportunity to collect new and updated information from electors for use in refreshing the Register and subsequent Lists of Electors.

At the close of polls, election officers conducted the unofficial count of ballots and telephoned results to the Returning Officer. All results were communicated in a timely manner and were made available in Returning Officers' offices. Returning Officers' staff posted the unofficial results, as they arrived, to the Elections Alberta website. Interested parties were able to view poll-by-poll results online, as well as results aggregated for the entire province, as they were posted. Compliments on the efficiency of the results system were conveyed to Elections Alberta by representatives of other election offices, the Media Consortium and the Prime Minister's office.

Additions to the Lists of Electors

The number of names on the Lists of Electors increased throughout the election period. Lists of Electors made available to political parties at the beginning of the election period, in accordance with section 18(3) of the Act, contained 2,283,260 names.

The target enumeration process, and election period additions made by Returning Officers at the request of electors, updated over 170,000 elector records to increase the currency of the List of Electors. In addition to the revisions to existing elector records, almost 17,000 names were added. When the polls opened on March 3, 2,300,093 names appeared on the Lists of Electors.

At the close of polls on polling day, 2,557,269 names appeared on the Lists of Electors, representing an addition of 257,176 electors who completed an Oath of Elector enabling them to have their names added to the List of Electors on polling day. The following table shows additions to the Lists of Electors during the election period, by electoral division.

[1] This represents the number of names on the Lists of Electors provided to political parties in accordance with section 18(3) of the Election Act.

[2] This includes the number of names on the Lists of Electors after the target enumeration, with the additions of elector information collected from the revision period and online registrations.

[3] This represents the number of names on the Lists of Elector at the close of polls on polling day, with the addition of elector information collected on polling day.

Electors whose names were added to the List of Electors were asked to provide their birth date and previous address, in addition to current address information. This will ensure that their elector record can be updated if they appear on the List of Electors at an old address. Electors who do not provide complete information may not appear on the correct List of Electors in the future if their information or the polling subdivision boundaries change, because data matching and updating may not be possible.

Quality of the Lists of Electors

The quality of Lists of Electors affects both campaigning and election administration. Quality is measured on two dimensions:

- completeness—the proportion of electors on the Lists of Electors compared to the total number of electors in the province, and
- currency—the proportion of electors on the Lists of Electors at their current address.

The Lists of Electors distributed to registered political parties in February 2008, and subsequently used at the polls, were compared to the total number of eligible electors, based on estimates from Statistics Canada, to gauge completeness. Using this measurement, the Lists of Electors were 95.3% complete.

The Lists of Electors were measured for currency in January, 2007 by an independent research and marketing firm. A random sampling of electors, whose names appeared in the Register of Electors, were contacted to determine whether their information was correct. Survey results indicated that 76.2% of electors appeared in the Register of Electors at a current address.

Use of available completeness and currency indicators reveals an accuracy level of 72.6%, which means that 72.6% of all eligible electors in Alberta appear at a current address.

The following table illustrates the completeness of the Lists of Electors distributed to political parties in February 2008. The February 2008 elector population is measured against the post-election Lists, as well as the estimated total elector population.

The best method for gauging the quality of elector data is through annual measurements. Surveys will continue on a regular basis to determine the quality of data held in the Register of Electors.

[1] This represents the number of names on the Lists of Electors provided to political parties in accordance with section 18(3) of the Election Act.

[2] This includes the number of names on the Lists of Electors after the target enumeration, with the additions of elector information collected from the revision period, online registrations and on polling day, and following the deletion of duplicated, relocated and deceased electors post-polling day.

[3] This is the estimated total elector population based on special Statistics Canada tabulation of the 2006 Census Long Form data regarding citizenship by age. It takes into account that any 16 and 17 year olds in that tabulation would be of voting age by March 2008 and reflects deaths that have occurred since that time. Migration statistics are not included. (Source data provided by Service Alberta—data analysis by Alberta Finance and Enterprise - Statistics)

[4] The random rounding process employed by Statistics Canada, implies that the individual Electoral Division counts will not add up to the total specified as these are tabulated separately from the source data.

POST-ELECTION ACTIVITIES

Quality of Service Received by Electors

A survey was conducted in the weeks following the election, in order to:

- understand the public's perceptions of voting,
- measure how effectively Elections Alberta informed the public of their rights and obligations, and
- measure the public's satisfaction with the voting process.

A total of 1,200 surveys were completed, including 931 with respondents who voted (self-reported) and 269 with respondents who did not vote. Surveys were completed between March 19 and April 3, 2008.

The survey (which is available in its entirety at www.elections.ab.ca) was conducted by an independent research and marketing firm to collect and tabulate public responses in a professional, objective manner. This research provides:

- insight into the patterns of voters, to ensure their needs will continue to be met into the future,
- insight into non-voters' reasons for not voting, to help plan meaningful ways to encourage participation, and
- assessment of current services, to identify opportunities for process improvements.

Voters were asked to comment on the service they received during the election. It was interesting to note that:

- 97% of voters found the staff at the polling place to be helpful
- 96% of voters found the polling place location to be convenient
- 95% of voters were satisfied with the time it took to vote
- 94% of voters were satisfied with their voting experience
- 88% of voters were satisfied with the availability of necessary information

It is heartening to note that over 97% of people surveyed believe that voting is important. The challenge is to find ways to translate that belief into action.

Official Results

The official results were announced by each of the 83 Returning Officers on Thursday, March 13, 2008. Results are presented in this Report beginning on page 169, in accordance with section 4(3) of the Act.

Custody and Inspection of Election Documents

Polling day documentation for 83 electoral divisions was returned to Elections Alberta following the announcement of the Official Results, in accordance with section 142 of the Act.

Legislation prescribes that candidates and their official agents may inspect all polling day documentation for their electoral division, with the exception of the ballots, in the thirty-day period following the publication of the names of elected Members of the Legislative Assembly in the Alberta Gazette, which occurred on April 15, 2008. Three candidates availed themselves of this opportunity.

Distribution of Poll Books

During the same thirty-day period, candidates and their official agents may request copies of the Poll Books used at the election. Ninety-five sets of copies were provided to candidates on a cost-recovery basis.

Judicial Recount

No judicial recount or appeal was filed for in any electoral division.

Controverted Election Petition

A petition was filed with the Court of Queen's Bench on May 26, 2008 by Ron Leech, an Independent candidate in the electoral division of Calgary-Montrose. The petition named Manmeet Bhullar, the candidate declared elected, as the respondent and sought to have the results of the election in Calgary-Montrose set aside. The application is still in its preliminary stages and there has been no decision on the application by the Court at this time.

Development and Distribution of the Post-Polling Day Lists of Electors

Elector information collected throughout the election period and on polling day was incorporated into the Register of Electors for preparation of future Lists of Electors.

Lists were updated following the election by:

- moving electors from old to new addresses,
- adding first-time electors,
- correcting polling place assignments, where necessary, and
- correcting names and addresses, where required.

On July 8, 2008, updated Lists of Electors were distributed to political parties and Members of the Legislative Assembly in accordance with section 19 of the Act. Recipients of the Lists of Electors were reminded of the statutory restrictions for use, to ensure elector information is used appropriately. Penalties for misuse include fines up to $100,000, or a term of imprisonment up to one year, or both. "Guidelines on Access to and Disclosure of Alberta's List of Electors" have been developed by Elections Alberta and were included in printed and electronic format to assist political parties and Members of the Legislative Assembly in the establishment of appropriate security procedures to safeguard the confidential elector data provided to them.

FINANCIAL ACTIVITIES

Target Enumeration Expenses—Fees and Associated Costs

The following information directly relates to the numbered columns presented in Table 6: 2008 Target Enumeration Cost Summary by Electoral Division on pages 37 and 38:

Returning Officers

1. Honorarium, basic fee, fee payment for names recorded on the List of Electors, attendance at the Chief Electoral Officer's training sessions, training of enumeration officials, revisions to maps and Lists, and employer contributions.

2. Meals, accommodation and travel.

3. Office and equipment rental, training space rental, telephone expenses, map preparation, printing and miscellaneous costs.

4. Support staff and wages.

Enumerators

5. Basic and instructional fee.

6. Fee payment for names and addresses recorded on the Lists of Electors.

Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure Act Information

The Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act requires all political parties, constituency associations and candidates to be registered with the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer.

The EFCD Act provides for the public disclosure of financial statements and contributions over $375, in aggregate.

Information Sessions

With a view toward improving the understanding and application of the provisions in the EFCD Act, Elections Alberta participated in three separate Campaign Colleges organized by political parties. Each of the three sessions was attended by approximately 20 political party representatives seeking to gain a better understanding of the EFCD Act.

In addition, for the first time, Elections Alberta organized four open information sessions in Edmonton and Calgary targeted at candidates, their chief financial officers, and official agents. Each of these open sessions was attended by about 30 participants. The general format of the information sessions was designed to provide participants with a better understanding of the provisions relating to registration requirements, contribution limits, issuance of official contribution receipts, restrictions on spending activities, advertising, filing of nomination papers, and filing of financial statements.

Candidate Registrations

Until a candidate has been registered with the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer, the candidate may not raise or spend money on their campaign.

Any person, corporation, trade union or employee organization may contribute up to a maximum of $2,000, in aggregate, to each candidate during the campaign period. The campaign period commences on the date the candidate is registered with the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer, following the issuance of the Writ of Election, and continues for a period not exceeding two months after polling day.

The Alberta Income Tax Act provides a system of tax credits for contributions to registered political parties, registered constituency associations and registered candidates.

Example of Income Tax Credits

Amount Contributed	Calculation	Income Tax Credit
$ 200.00	75% of $200.00	$ 150.00
1,100.00	$150.00 + 50% of $900.00	600.00
2,300.00	$600.00 + 33 1/3% of $1,200.00	1,000.00

Candidates' Campaign Period Financial Statements

Each registered candidate was required to file a Campaign Period Financial Statement by July 3, 2008. Political parties must file Political Party Campaign Period Financial Statements on or before September 3, 2008. Copies of all financial statements are published on the website and placed on the Public Files maintained by this Office for examination during normal office hours. The 2008 Annual Report of the Chief Electoral Officer will provide details on all campaign period financial statements filed in 2008.

Candidates' Deposits

Candidates must submit a $500 nomination deposit along with their Candidate's Nomination Paper. All candidates who win, or who receive half the votes of the winning candidate, are refunded half of the $500 deposit. In addition, those who file candidate campaign period financial statements within the prescribed period are refunded half of the deposit.

A total of 131 candidates received a refund of $250 for receiving the most votes, or at least fifty per cent of the votes received by the winning candidate.

In addition, a total of 377 candidates received a refund of $250 by filing their financial statement on or prior to July 3, 2008, the legislated timeline.

All candidates who registered in accordance with section 43(2) of the EFCD Act are required to file a financial statement, even if they did not file a Candidate's Nomination Paper with the Returning Officer. A total of 412 candidates registered under the EFCD Act, while only 407 filed a Candidate's Nomination Paper under the Election Act.

Explanatory notes for election expenses, including fees and associated costs, are found on page 42.

Election expenses were incurred in accordance with the Fees and Expenses Regulation. An extract of the Regulation appears on page 46.

Fee Schedule—Fees and Expenses Regulation

A Returning Officer may be paid the following:

a. a monthly honorarium of $130;

b. a fee of $1640 for each year in which the register of electors is updated through an enumeration plus $0.17 per name collected or confirmed for the register of electors;

c. a fee of $200 per day for each day of attendance at a sitting to revise the register of electors prepared following an enumeration;

d. a fee of $175 per day for each day of attendance at training sessions called by the Chief Electoral Officer;

e. a fee of $400 for training staff to conduct an enumeration;

f. a fee of $1525 if a writ of election is issued but no poll is held;

g. a fee of $5000 if a writ of election is issued and a poll is held, including training of election staff and the conduct of the official count;

h. a fee of $0.17 per name included in the list of electors on polling day;

i. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act;

j. a supplemental fee of $22 for every 100 km, or portion thereof, travelled in excess of the first 100 km of travel during an enumeration or an election;

k. if a returning officer

    i. elects to use the returning officer's personal residence as an office, a maximum rental of $500 per month with a rental period not exceeding 2 months, unless otherwise approved by the Chief Electoral Officer, or

    ii. elects to use commercial space as an office, the most economical rate available with a rental period not exceeding 2 months, unless otherwise approved by the Chief Electoral Officer;

l. a fee of $750 for revisions to the electoral division map showing subdivision boundaries and to the register of electors when directed by the Chief Electoral Officer;

m. an additional fee of $750 for the review of the electoral division map and register of electors performed after an Electoral Boundaries Commission Report.

An Enumerator may be paid the following:

a. a basic fee of $120;

b. a fee of $1 per name collected or confirmed for the register of electors;

c. a fee of $50 for attending a class of instruction;

d. a fee of $35 for verifying the accuracy of the revised register of electors;

e. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act;

f. a supplemental fee of $11 for every 100 km, or portion thereof, travelled in excess of the first 100 km of travel during an enumeration.

A Data Entry Operator may be paid the following:

a. a fee of $17 for every complete poll or equivalent number of names entered;

b. a fee of $0.15 per name included in the list of electors for specific polling subdivisions;

c. a fee of $30 for a self-training session;

d. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

An Election Clerk may be paid the following:

a. a fee of $1265, where a writ of election is issued and no poll is held;

b. a fee of $3350 if a writ of election is issued and a poll is held, including training of election staff and the conduct of the official count;

c. a fee of $0.15 per name included in the list of electors on polling day;

d. a fee of $175 for attending a class of instruction;

e. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act;

f. a supplemental fee of $16.50 for every 100 km, or portion thereof, travelled in excess of the first 100 km of travel during an election.

An Administrative Assistant may be paid the following:

a. a fee of $2800 for duties performed on a full-time basis in the returning officer's office where a writ of election is issued and a poll is held, including the post-election update of the register of electors;

b. a fee to be prorated at a daily rate, as approved by the Chief Electoral Officer, for duties performed on a part-time basis in the returning officer's office;

c. a fee to be prorated at a daily rate, as approved by the Chief Electoral Officer, if a writ of election is issued but no poll is held;

d. a fee of $150 for attending a class of instruction;

e. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

A Supervisory Deputy Returning Officer may be paid the following:

a. a basic fee of $250 for duties performed on polling day or on each advance polling day;

b. a fee of $50 for attending a class of instruction;

c. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

A Registration Officer may be paid the following:

a. a basic fee of $200 for duties performed on polling day or on each advance polling day;

b. a fee of $50 for attending a class of instruction;

c. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

A Deputy Returning Officer may be paid the following:

a. a basic fee of $210 for duties performed on polling day or on each advance polling day;

b. a fee of $50 for attending a class of instruction;

c. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

A Poll Clerk may be paid the following:

a. a basic fee of $170 for duties performed on polling day or on each advance polling day;

b. when required to travel on official business, the rates prescribed in the Public Service Subsistence, Travel and Moving Expenses Regulation made under the Public Service Act.

The following additional fees and expenses may be paid:

a. a maximum of $150 per day for the rental of a building where one poll is held and $75 per day for each additional poll held in the same building or part of the building which includes the cost of utilities, janitorial services and the supply of all necessary furniture;

b. telephone installation, service and toll charges at prevailing rates, on submission of the invoices or receipts for the installation, service and toll charges;

c. support staff, including, but not limited to, messengers, special constables and interpreters, at a rate approved by the Chief Electoral Officer;

d. printing costs for lists of electors, proclamations, ballots, forms and any other printing or photocopying required by a returning officer, at the most economical commercial rate available;

e. publication costs for

    i. proclamations,

    ii. maps of electoral divisions showing boundaries of polling subdivisions,

    iii. list of names and addresses of candidates' agents, and

    iv. any other matter required to be published under the Act, at the current rate of the newspaper in which publication actually occurs;

f. costs for the collection and the data entry of address based information at a rate approved by the Chief Electoral Officer.

The maximum polling place rental referred to in subsection (1)(a) may be adjusted only in extraordinary circumstances with written approval of the Chief Electoral Officer.

If, in the opinion of the Chief Electoral Officer, an emergency exists, or a circumstance for which no adequate provision of fees exists, the Chief Electoral Officer may fix the appropriate fee for the situation.

The fees under the Fees and Expenses Regulation may be prorated at the discretion of the Chief Electoral Officer.

ISSUES AND PROPOSED SOLUTIONS

Challenges of the 2008 Provincial General Election

Public comment on election administration is welcomed. Concerns relating to election management are helpful, as they direct attention to areas that could benefit from service and legislative improvements.

Concerns raised by individual electors are addressed on a case by case basis. Necessary research is conducted, election legislation is explained and specific issues are resolved. Returning Officers, election officers and Elections Alberta staff share this commitment to client service and work together to address these concerns as they arise.

Feeback received from political parties, candidates, volunteers, facility managers and other interested groups are addressed in the same manner. Specific details relating to the concern are requested to facilitate meaningful follow-up with the individuals affected.

Often, concerns are raised due to a lack of understanding of the law governing provincial election administration. Complainants raise issues which trouble them, but do not contravene the law. One common example is the complaint that electors are not asked to produce identification that proves eligibility – age, residency, citizenship, and identity. Conversely, others complain when they are requested to provide identification before voting. In fact, electors who are on the List of Electors do not have to produce any type of identification. Those who are not on the List of Electors must provide the identification that is prescribed by law. This is a typical example of a concern that does not constitute an irregularity, fraud or a breach of the Election Act (the Act), but nevertheless causes concern for some political parties, candidates and voters.

The majority of concerns are addressed by communicating the law as it applies to the situation. An ongoing communications strategy will continue to provide relevant information, using a variety of methods, to promote understanding of the rules governing provincial elections.

Issues raised in regard to infractions of election rules or problems with administration are not treated lightly. Those that appear to constitute a possible breach of the Act are researched with the individuals involved. These reviews can be time-consuming and difficult to resolve, particularly if allegations are raised months after the event. Likewise, administrative issues are thoroughly investigated so that process improvements can be made or legislative amendments can be recommended to the Legislative Assembly.

The more salient concerns raised during the election period are discussed in the following pages.

1. Process of Returning Officers' Appointments

The Returning Officers who manage enumerations and elections are currently appointed by Order in Council. The fairness of this process was questioned, as was the ability of Returning Officers to fulfil their responsibilities in a non-partisan manner. Because they are the most visible election officers during an election, it is essential that they are perceived by voters, candidates and the political parties to represent an electoral system that is fair and impartial. Their independence in both fact and perception helps to assure the public of the integrity of election administration within the province.

It is important to note that concerns focused on the process of appointments; not on the performance of Returning Officers. There has been no fact-based suggestion of Returning Officers engaging in partisan activities during their terms of appointment.

By legislation, Returning Officer appointments may occur two years following a general election and are terminated four months following a general election. The timeliness of appointments is essential to the effective orientation, training, preparation and, where necessary, replacement of Returning Officers. For the 2008 general election, Returning Officers could have been appointed as early as November 2006. Although numerous requests were made for the timely appointment of Returning Officers during 2006 and 2007, the first appointments were made on December 19, 2007. The balance were appointed in the period from January 23, 2008 to February 4, 2008; from just over a week prior to the election call up to the day of the election call. By contrast, Returning Officers responsible for the conduct of the 2004 election were appointed thirteen months prior to polling day.

The late appointment of Returning Officers made it difficult for the effective completion of pre-election activities such as the map and List of Electors review, target enumeration planning and management, selection of office staff, location of office space, identification of potential polling places and identification of sources for staff recruitment.

Returning Officers are to be commended for the work they did considering the complexity of their job, the short time frame of the election period and the lateness of their appointments.

Proposed solutions:

Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to hire Returning Officers through an open, merit-based competitive process, in sufficient time for preparation and conduct of activities mandated by the Election Act. Establishment of a fixed election date will also allow for more timely preparation and planning.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to the Returning Officer appointment process and election date selection, made in 2006, appear on pages 63 and 67, respectively.

2. Lists of Electors

The process for maintaining and updating the database used to produce Lists of Electors was described earlier in this Report, in the "Development of the Lists of Electors" section.

Two of the main challenges in producing accurate, complete and current Lists of Electors for 2.3 million electors stem from the difficulty of matching updates to elector records with existing elector records, and assigning addresses to correct polling subdivisions. These challenges increase when electors do not provide complete information.

The short time available for the review and revision of polling subdivision maps, and corresponding Lists of Electors, was a factor in the currency of the Lists of Electors. Had additional time been available to allow input from all Returning Officers to be incorporated and validated, additional updates and improvements to Lists of Electors could have been captured.

The incomplete target enumeration was another factor. Target enumeration of a minimum of 25% of the elector population was planned for September 2007. Without Returning Officers, this could not occur. The date for target enumeration to begin was rescheduled to February 1, 2008 once Returning Officers' appointments were made. The election was called on February 4, 2008 and Elections Alberta is not made privy to the date of the election in advance of its call. Had sufficient time been available to enumerate all areas of new growth and high mobility across the province, a significant volume of additional updates would have appeared.

One quality measurement may be derived from the number of Election Day additions that were required. A total of 257,176 electors, of the 953,777 who cast ballots, were added to the List of Electors on polling day, resulting in a swear-in rate of 26.9%. This proportion of polling day additions is not surprising, given the 2007 List Quality survey results which indicated that 24% of electors in the Register of Electors did not appear at a current address in January 2007.

The vast majority of the voting public appeared on the List of Electors correctly. That is no consolation, however, to electors whose information was incorrect. It is regrettable that those electors were inconvenienced by lining up to register and by the requirement to complete an Oath of Elector prior to voting.

Proposed solution:

Appoint Returning Officers earlier in the process so that they can be involved in the pre-election preparation to allow for a thorough review of polling subdivision maps and Lists of Electors, for preparation and implementation of a target enumeration plan and detailed review of the post-enumeration List of Electors. Timely appointment of Returning Officers and a fixed election date will ensure these activities occur well in advance of an election period to optimize the quality of Lists of Electors provided in accordance with section 18(3) of the Act. This will also avoid conflicting priorities that arise within an election period when Returning Officers must conduct an enumeration at the same time that they are expected to complete a plethora of other important and necessary preparatory activities.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to the Returning Officer appointment process and election date selection, made in 2006, appear on pages 63 and 67, respectively.

In addition, legislative amendments to increase access to data necessary for effective Register of Electors management will allow for implementation of these solutions. The recommendations for various amendments to strengthen access provisions, made in 2006, appear on pages 71 through 73.

3. Line-ups at Polling Places

Plans to prevent line-ups occur in advance of polling day. Returning Officers hire additional staff if they believe that specific polling places will be particularly busy or may experience an exceptionally high volume of polling day registrations. Returning Officers were encouraged to increase the number of registration officers assigned to polling places if target enumeration results fell below their expectations.

Incorrect and incomplete Lists of Electors contribute to polling day line-ups. Improving the quality of the Lists of Electors will reduce the number of polling day registrations and streamline the voting process overall.

One pair of election officers serves one polling subdivision (a fairly confined geographic area). Some line-ups are expected at the traditional peak times and will continue to occur as long as limited voting options exist.

With polling places opening at 9 a.m., most electors vote after work, so the hours between 5 p.m. and 7 p.m. are particularly busy. With restrictions on advance voting, the majority of electors have only one day to cast their ballots.

Another factor contributes to line-ups, as well. At every election, complaints are lodged when candidates arrange for transportation of large groups of electors to polling places. If all the electors live in the same polling subdivision, there will be a line-up while election officers assist each elector in turn.

That being said, research, based on 2008 survey results, revealed:
- 95% of voters were satisfied with the time it took at the polling station
- line-ups did not appear in non-voters' reasons for not voting

Proposed solutions:

Appoint Returning Officers earlier in the process so that they can be involved in the pre-election preparations that are necessary to enhance the quality of Lists of Electors, as mentioned previously.

Open polling places earlier in the day to encourage more electors to vote on their way to work. Remove advance voting restrictions to allow more electors to vote during the days in which advance polls are open. Increase the number of days of advance voting to provide electors with a broader range of voting options. These factors will help to distribute the voting traffic more evenly and reduce the volume of voters at peak times.

Forms for polling day registration will be refined to collect required data more efficiently. This will help to address other situations which cause line-ups to occur.

The recommendation for a legislative amendment to the Returning Officer appointment process, made in 2006, appears on page 63.

A recommendation for legislative amendment to increase the accessibility of voting by removing restrictions on advance voting, made in 2006, appears on page 80.

Additional recommendations to significantly increase voting options and reduce line-ups, including "anywhere voting", extending the hours of voting, increasing the number of days of voting, and testing new voting technologies, appear on pages 104, 106, 107 and 115, respectively.

Further improvements will occur through implementation of the recommendations for streamlining the voting process through clarification of voter identification requirements and rules of residence, which appear on pages 108 and 109, respectively.

4. Locations of Returning Officers' Offices and Polling Places

Returning Officers do not have permanent locations for office space. Possible options are explored once Returning Officers are appointed, within the context of pre-election preparation. Vacant premises cannot be leased until the election period is known, which occurs with the issuance of the writs of election. All Returning Officers located appropriate office space, in spite of the difficulties associated with securing a short-term lease at a time of very low vacancy rates. While space was not ideal in all cases, it was serviceable.

Polling place locations are similarly established once Returning Officers are appointed and the date of the election is known. One of the first tasks for Returning Officers in the early days of the election period is contacting managers of facilities that would serve as convenient polling place locations, to determine availability. A firm commitment for use of space must be obtained early in the election period to facilitate the publishing of polling place locations online, the mailing of where-to-vote cards and the advertising of locations in the newspaper. Again, possible options are explored within the context of pre-election preparation, if time permits.

Selection of convenient voting locations and returning office space must occur within very narrow time constraints. Returning Officers are expected to be in their offices by day 2 of the 28-day election calendar, and are expected to have polling places selected by day 5. These are two of the most challenging tasks of the many that comprise a Returning Officer's job. If a Returning Officer's first choice for either an office or polling place location cannot be confirmed within these timelines, the next best location must be selected from those available.

Returning Officers cannot commandeer facilities as polling places. The selection process requires cooperation of owners or custodians of the premises.

Schools are an excellent option for polling place locations. The Act specifically identifies schools for this purpose, because they are centrally located and are known to electors in the immediate area. School administrators have raised an increasing number of concerns over past years relating to conflicts with programming, security of students, risks posed by additional traffic and the impact on janitorial services. If this trend continues, the number of polling place options will be reduced and convenience to the electorate may be compromised.

Research, based on 2008 survey results, revealed:

- 96% of voters were satisfied with the convenience of their polling place location
- 1% of non-voters indicated that they did not vote because their polling place location was too far, or they had no transportation
- 2% of non-voters indicated that polling places that were closer, or easier to get to, would encourage them to vote

Proposed solution:

Appoint Returning Officers earlier in the process so that they can be involved in the pre-election preparations to allow for a thorough review of prospective office and polling place locations. A fixed election date will also allow Returning Officers to obtain firm commitments from facility managers well in advance to allow schools and other polling place locations to incorporate this requirement into their annual scheduling. In addition, amending the existing provision in the Act to ensure availability of schools as polling places will provide more options for locations that are convenient to the majority of electors.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to the Returning Officer appointment process and election date selection, made in 2006, appear on pages 63 and 67, respectively.

A recommendation for legislative amendment to ensure the use of schools as polling places appears on page 115.

5. Polling Places on University Campuses and Temporary Work Sites

The Act requires that electors vote at their place of ordinary residence, in accordance with the following definition:

Ordinary residence is determined in accordance with the following rules:

(a) a person can have only one place of ordinary residence;

(b) a person's ordinary residence is the place where the person lives and sleeps and to which, when the person is absent from it, the person intends to return;

(c) a student who

 (i) is in attendance at an educational institution within or outside Alberta,

 (ii) temporarily rents accommodation for the purpose of attending an educational institution, and

 (iii) has family members who are ordinarily resident in Alberta and with whom the student ordinarily resides when not in attendance at an educational institution is deemed to reside with those family members;

(d) when a person leaves Alberta with the intention of becoming ordinarily resident outside Alberta, the person's ordinary residence in Alberta ceases.

The elector's ordinary residence is the location in which he or she resides in the normal course of life. It is not a location that is temporarily acquired for a limited period of time, however long, for the purpose of working, attending a post-secondary institution, etc. In the case of students, particularly, a very specific definition is provided.

Residences associated with post-secondary institutions, and temporary work sites, are most often inhabited by people who are ordinarily resident elsewhere. Some maintain an ordinary residence out of province or out of country, and do not meet the voter eligibility requirements of the Act, even though they may study, work or visit in Alberta for a lengthy period of time. Polling places were not established in these locations because of the high proportion of electors who would be ineligible to vote, based on guidelines established in the Act. Instead, electors at these locations were provided with information which would allow them to vote by Special Ballot, if eligible.

Special Ballot information packages were sent to post-secondary institutions, trade unions and the Canadian Armed Forces early in the election period, to provide electors who were absent from their place of ordinary residence with an opportunity to vote in their own electoral division, as the Act requires. The Special Ballot, which is often used as a mail-in ballot, is requested from the Returning Officer by the elector, and must be returned by the close of polls on polling day. It provides a convenient method for electors who are away from home to vote, in accordance with the law, if it is not convenient for them to travel home for the advance polls or on polling day.

Research, based on 2008 survey results, revealed:

- 61% of non-voters indicated that they would be more likely to vote if they could vote at any polling station

Proposed solution:

Establish a specific timeframe in which a person is deemed to attain ordinary residence status to eliminate the need for interpretation. Deem an Alberta resident who temporarily resides in a place in Alberta to allow him or her to attend an educational institution for 6 months or longer, or to pursue his or her ordinary occupation in a job that is expected to last for 6 months or longer, to be ordinarily resident in that location from the date the person begins to reside there.

Permit voting at any advance voting location, or any returning office, by Special Ballot. Permit the establishment of additional advance voting stations in high traffic areas and places where large numbers of electors are located such as large shopping malls, airports, work camps, and college campuses.

A recommendation for legislative amendment to clarify the rules of residency for voters appears on page 109.

A recommendation to increase the accessibility of voting by removing restrictions on advance voting, made in 2006, appears on page 80. A further recommendation to permit "anywhere voting" appears on page 104.

6. Campaign Signs Near Polling Places

Concerns with campaign sign placement are raised frequently during every election period. Campaign signs near polling places raise the perception of political interference. The current prohibition on advertising prohibits placement of campaign advertisements in or on a building in which a polling place is located. There is no prohibition on advertising on the grounds of the polling place or on adjacent public property.

Proposed solution:

Include distance limits for the placement of advertising near polling places and authorize election officers to remove advertising that contravenes the distance limits.

The recommendation for legislative amendment to restrict campaign signs near polling places, made in 2006, appears on page 77.

7. Identification Requirements

Identification requirements are often misunderstood by electors. Given that requirements vary between the provincial, federal and municipal elections, that is not surprising. It is unfortunate but also not surprising that, at times, election officers may even misinterpret the training provided to them; particularly given that people who work at elections often work at provincial, federal and municipal elections. This is not a criticism of the quality of their work, but a frustration that is often shared by election officers.

Provincial legislation directs that electors who are on the List of Electors do not have to provide identification, while electors who are not on the List of Electors must provide two pieces of identification that are acceptable to the deputy returning officer at the polling station. Electors do not have to produce photo identification, nor do they have to prove Canadian citizenship, age, address or six-month residency.

There are different views regarding the types of identification that should be required. The Act tries to strike a balance between accommodating those who do not carry typical identification, or any identification, while still maintaining the integrity of the process. In the debate, it is important to remember that the voting system is, in many ways, honour-based. People who provide elector information to an enumerator, at their home, do not have to prove the identity or eligibility of the electors they add to the List of Electors. People who vote by Special Ballot currently do not have to provide identification when they request a Special Ballot.

The current system is basically self-policing. Electors vote in the community in which they live. Returning Officers attempt to hire election officers from within the community, and scrutineers often volunteer in their own communities. This familiarity is a powerful deterrent to someone who may consider voting fraudulently. If a voter's eligibility is questioned by an election officer or scrutineer, in good faith, the elector must complete an oath confirming eligibility, and provide two pieces of identification, even if their name appears on the List of Electors.

Proposed solution:

A person who is required to establish his or her identity should be required to do so by providing one official document issued by a federal, provincial or municipal government that contains the person's name and photograph or at least two documents that provide evidence of the person's identity satisfactory to the election officer. If none of the documents provided to establish a person's identity contains a current address, the person should be required to make a signed declaration as to his or her current address. Special Ballot applicants should be required to provide the same identification as other voters.

A recommendation for legislative amendment to identification requirements appears on page 108. In addition, a recommendation for legislative amendment to Special Ballot identification requirements, made in 2006, appears on page 78.

8. Information Regarding Where to Vote

During the past election, electors had more options than ever before to obtain information on where to vote. The "Communications Strategy" section presented these options in detail, which included:

- Two direct mailings to residences
- Website with "Where Do I Vote?" search function
- Website with "Am I Registered To Vote?" search function
- Radio and television advertising
- Expanded call centre and email support
- Newspaper advertisements and inserts

The majority of electors were well served by these resources. Some margin of error is likely to appear in a database used to direct 2.3 million electors to one of 6,106 polling stations established only weeks before. For this reason, communication pieces provided contact information for Elections Alberta or local Returning Officers, so electors could verify information if they had any doubt about where they were to vote.

A single database was used to produce Lists of Electors, create customized voter cards, provide online information, and supply call centre operators with information for callers. This allows for efficient updating of all resources and ensures consistency. The data was verified through a manual review process performed by Returning Officers, within the tight time lines mentioned previously.

Voter information cards, which were distributed for the first time during this election, were well received by electors. This is not surprising, given that direct delivery to their homes was the preference most often expressed in response to a 2007 voter survey question. In fact, 84% of electors stated that having information sent to their homes was the best means of communication.

The website has become a popular source of polling place information since its launch during the 2004 general election. Although only 5% of the 2008 survey respondents indicated that they received their information on where to vote via the website, other information sources, such as political parties, use the online resources to provide direction to electors.

Regrettably, website users experienced a disruption in service on polling day starting at 9:00 a.m. It affected both public users and call centre operators. The primary reason for the slower response time experienced by users was data input occurring in returning offices, which placed additional, unexpected demands on the system. It quickly became apparent that the data input was affecting access to the "Where Do I Vote?" and "Am I Registered To Vote?" search functions.

To alleviate the problem, data input was immediately disabled. As a safety measure, public access to "Where Do I Vote?" and "Am I Registered To Vote?" were disabled just prior to 10:30 a.m. in order to ensure maximum performance for call centre operators.

By 10:30 a.m. the system had been stabilized and call centre operators were fully operational. Target performance levels had been reinstated, so the "Where Do I Vote?" search function was restored and accessible to the general public just before noon. The "Am I Registered To Vote?" search function was restored an hour after that.

While this service disruption was inconvenient, it is important to note that back-up resources were in place to supply information to users. Callers were directed to Returning Officers who provided polling place information from maps or Lists of Electors. Although this is not as efficient as the online search function, it is a viable back-up and was, in fact, the primary method of information dissemination prior to 2004.

A concern was raised by electors who went to vote at the polling place they used at a previous election, only to be frustrated to find that it was not their assigned polling place for the 2008 election. Unfortunately, it is not always possible to obtain the same polling places used in previous provincial elections, and not always practical to use polling places established for municipal and federal elections, given the difference in voting boundaries.

As in all elections, difficulties occurred for electors who attempted to get information late on polling day. At peak times on polling day, electors who telephone or email experience a longer wait than those who obtain information earlier in the election period. The Voter Information Centre was doubled in size for this election and additional resources will be added in the future to address this concern.

In addition to other types of information, polling place maps were available in all polling places. Electors who found themselves at the wrong polling place were able to determine their assigned location by locating their residence on the posted maps and checking the polling place information held by the senior election officer. Contact information for Elections Alberta and the local Returning Officer was available at all polling places to provide assistance to electors who could not be served using the onsite resources. Electors who arrived at the wrong polling place were to be redirected to their assigned polling place. This process will be reinforced through more thorough training on our part.

Research, based on 2008 survey results, revealed that only 2% of respondents identified errors on the voter cards mailed to them. In addition, the research revealed that 88% of voters were satisfied with the availability of voting information.

Proposed solutions:

Appointing Returning Officers earlier in the process so that they can be involved in the pre-election preparations that are necessary to enhance the quality of Lists of Electors, as mentioned previously, will subsequently improve the quality of all resources used to provide polling place information. A fixed election date will allow for development and verification of all where-to-vote information and means of communication well in advance of polling day.

Implementation of a geographic information system (GIS) will ensure that electors' addresses are assigned to the correct polling place. The GIS link to the address database will ensure that individual addresses receive customized cards directing them to the assigned polling place.

Additional advance load testing of the Elections Alberta website will occur to ensure reliability. Further expansion of stand-alone server capacity and server redundancy will occur to accommodate anticipated volumes. Manual backups for all computerized functions will be in place and will be tested by Returning Officers, as part of the pre-election preparation.

Elections Alberta will examine and continue to expand methods to convey key messages and where-to-vote information effectively. All resources will undergo a rigorous assessment of their effectiveness in providing necessary information in a clear and concise manner.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to the Returning Officer appointment process and election date selection, made in 2006, appear on pages 63 and 67, respectively.

In addition, recommendations to increase access to necessary data for effective management of the Register of Electors will improve the quality of Lists of Electors. The recommendations for various amendments to strengthen access provisions, made in 2006, appear on pages 71 through 73.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to remove the restrictions on advance voting and implement "anywhere voting" appear on pages 80 and 104, respectively. Voters' options will expand beyond a single polling place.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to extend the hours of voting and increase the number of days of voting appear on pages 106 and 107, respectively. Implementation of the recommendations will expand the timeframe that voters are likely to request information and will distribute the website and telephone inquiries more evenly, to facilitate consistently efficient service on all voting days.

9. Special Ballots not Received on Time to be Counted

There were cases in which Special Ballots were requested by electors, but were not completed and returned to the Returning Officer by the close of polls on polling day. In this situation, the ballots are deemed rejected, in accordance with the Act.

Requests received early in the election period are more likely to reach their destinations on time. In some cases, electors sent their completed Special Ballots by courier to ensure their timely return.

It has been suggested that Elections Alberta maintain a Special Ballot voters register. Without a fixed election date, it is not practical to maintain Special Ballot requests between elections. If the date of the election was known in advance, electors could make appropriate arrangements prior to the election call. This will enable Returning Officers to forward Special Ballot packages in the first days of the election period.

Electors outside of Alberta who delay their requests may still experience this frustration, given that Returning Officers have limited control over mail and transportation services.

Proposed solutions:

Establishment of a fixed election date will allow for timely preparation and planning by electors and election administrators. Electors could apply, in advance, for a Special Ballot package to be mailed early in the election period.

Voting by Special Ballot at any advance voting location, or any returning office, will accommodate electors who are away from home, but still within the province.

Recommendations for legislative amendments to the Returning Officer appointment process and election date selection, made in 2006, appear on pages 63 and 67, respectively.

A recommendation for legislative amendment to permit "anywhere voting", which will provide additional opportunities for voters inside Alberta, but outside of their electoral divisions, appears on page 104.

RECOMMENDATIONS FOR LEGISLATIVE AMENDMENTS

OCTOBER 2006 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION ACT (THE ACT)—SUBSTANTIVE

Election Officer Recruitment

1. Returning Officer and Election Clerk appointment process (updated)

Background

The Returning Officers who manage enumerations and elections are currently appointed by Order in Council. When the Writs of Election are issued, Returning Officers appoint their assistants, the Election Clerks, to support them throughout the election period. The Election Clerk is the Returning Officer's primary support during the election period and may be requested to fulfil the responsibilities of the Returning Officer if the Returning Officer is unable or unwilling to act. When this occurs, there is a strong probability that the Election Clerk could be called on to act with minimal notice, so it is essential that the Election Clerk is qualified to act, should the need arise.

Returning Officers and Election Clerks are the most visible election officers during an election and, therefore, must be perceived by voters, candidates and the political parties to represent an electoral system that is fair and impartial. Their independence in both fact and perception helps to assure the public of the integrity of election administration within the province.

The role of the Returning Officer has become increasingly complex over the years and the management of elections relies heavily on computer technology and automated processes. For example, the former process of manually collecting and transcribing the List of Electors has evolved into an automated process using a customized application to update data contained within a permanent Register of Electors. Managing this activity requires an understanding of database management, as well as an ability to monitor and advise a skilled team within a computerized environment. Similar automation has been introduced in the areas of election management and reporting.

Technological advancements improve the efficiency of program delivery to voters and candidates, while placing additional demands on Returning Officers and their staff members. This trend will continue to increase along with public expectations for service enhancements. Returning Officers and the Election Clerks who directly support them require the ability to manage effectively within this environment.

The working relationship between the Chief Electoral Officer and Returning Officers lacks accountability. An employer/employee relationship would ensure accountability by Returning Officers, thus allowing the Chief Electoral Officer to establish and maintain appropriate performance measures to meet legislated requirements in a professional manner.

By legislation, Returning Officer appointments can occur two years following a general election and are terminated four months following a general election. The timeliness of appointments is essential to the effective orientation, training, preparation and, where necessary, replacement of Returning Officers. For the 2008 general election, returning officers could have been appointed as early as November 2006. Numerous requests were made for the timely appointment of returning officers during 2006 and 2007, but the first appointments were not made until December 19, 2007. The balance came on January 23, 2008, just over a week prior to the call of the 2008 election. This type of appointment timeframe limits the involvement of qualified individuals in activities which occur between events. A qualified, knowledgeable and impartial group of Returning Officers could make a valuable local contribution to activities that fall outside of the prescribed period, such as public education programs and the periodic registration of electors across the province.

The trend throughout the electoral community supports involvement of the Chief Electoral Officer in selecting Returning Officers. At the federal level, the Federal Accountability Act has transferred the responsibility for merit-based Returning Officer selection to Elections Canada. Other electoral jurisdictions including British Columbia, Manitoba, Newfoundland, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, Nunavut, Quebec and Saskatchewan have also moved to a system of hiring Returning Officers through an open, merit-based competitive process. Elections Ontario administers a testing process to prospective Returning Officers prior to their appointment by the Lieutenant Governor in Council.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 4, 9, 10, 47, 48

a. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to hire Returning Officers and Election Clerks through a merit-based competitive process – normally Election Clerks would move into vacant Returning Officer positions.

b. Permit hiring of a Returning Officer and Election Clerk from outside of the electoral division if no suitable candidate can be found within the area.

c. Expand the criteria to allow Returning Officer dismissal for cause at any time and apply the same dismissal policy to all election officers.

d. Extend the Returning Officer termination date to six months post-election to allow time for the thorough completion of all election activities.

e. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to extend the Returning Officer appointment period, where necessary to fulfil statutory obligations.

2. Prohibition against political activity (revised)

Background

Returning Officers are currently prohibited from engaging in political activity in support of a political party or candidate, and from making a contribution under the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act. There is no similar restriction on partisan activity at the constituency association level.

All election officers, and particularly Returning Officers, must be completely non-partisan in fact and perception. The prohibition on political activity should include a restriction on constituency association level participation.

Since the Election Clerk may be called upon to replace the Returning Officer in the case of absence or inability to act, and because of the high profile of that position, the same prohibitions should apply.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 12

a. Expand the list of prohibited activities for Returning Officers to include participation at the constituency association level.
b. Extend the prohibition against political activity to include Election Clerks.
c. Prohibit Election Clerks from making contributions under the EFCD Act.

Role of the Returning Officer

3. Voting prohibition (revised)

Background

Returning Officers are prohibited from voting in provincial elections unless they are required to cast a tie-breaking vote at the Official Count. Other electoral jurisdictions including Canada, British Columbia, Manitoba, Newfoundland, Northwest Territories, Nunavut, Ontario, Quebec, Saskatchewan, and Yukon allow Returning Officers to vote. The Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms guarantees Canadian citizens the right to vote. This Constitutional right is compromised by prohibiting the Returning Officers from voting.

Any Returning Officer asked to cast a tie-breaking vote would experience a grievous violation of the rights accorded to all electors. The Returning Officer could not necessarily vote for the candidate of his or her choice, but would have to select one of the candidates tied with the highest number of votes. The Returning Officer could not cast a secret ballot, as other electors do. The Returning Officer could not decline to vote, as is the right of all other electors. Furthermore, the Returning Officer who refused to cast a tie-breaking vote could be compelled by the Court to do so, through an Order of Mandamus.

Given that a tie vote would almost certainly result in an application for judicial recount, it would be far more practical and principled to legislate a mandatory application for judicial recount should the margin of victory be sufficiently narrow to warrant it. This currently occurs in other electoral jurisdictions including Canada, British Columbia, Manitoba, Newfoundland, Northwest Territories, Nunavut, Saskatchewan, Ontario, Quebec, and Yukon.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 45, 105, 106, 107, 137, 143, 144, 147, 204

a. Repeal the prohibition on Returning Officer voting.

b. Include a mechanism to trigger an automatic application for judicial recount of all ballots or only disputed ballots, if the margin of victory is less than 25 votes.

c. Add a provision for an automatic by-election in the case of a tie following a judicial recount or appeal.

4. Involvement of federal Returning Officers in provincial elections

Background

Federal Returning Officers are ineligible to participate as election officers in any capacity. It is prudent to exclude their participation as provincial Returning Officers, due to the potential for conflicting priorities, should federal and provincial electoral events coincide. This risk would be mitigated if there was a fixed date for calling elections. It would benefit the provincial election process to include this group of qualified and trained persons. Parallel federal legislation permits this practice, and a number of provincial Returning Officers work in various capacities during federal elections. Provincial Returning Officers have indicated that their involvement as assistant federal Returning Officers enhances their skills and creates networking opportunities that facilitate hiring for provincial elections. Allowing federal Returning Officer participation at the provincial level would create additional opportunities through strengthened partnerships.

a. Repeal the prohibition on federal Returning Officers' participation as election clerks, administrative assistants, supervisory deputy returning officers, registration officers, deputy returning officers or poll clerks.

b. Maintain the prohibition on federal Returning Officers' participation as provincial Returning Officers.

Establishment of a Fixed Election Date

5. Selection of the election date (updated)

Background

The current practice of establishing an election date through Order in Council causes significant challenges to electors, election officers, political participants and other stakeholders.

From a management perspective, a fixed election date would be advantageous for administration of the event. Elections Alberta would be able to secure advertising buys, recruit additional staff, and prearrange the acquisition and shipment of equipment and supplies. In the field, securing office space, polling places and supplies could be done in advance by providing a specific date when services would be required. With a known date for employment, a commitment of the approximately 15,000 staff required during the election could also be confirmed. An election called late in the week can incur costly overtime charges for weekend installation of telephone lines, and delivery of equipment, supplies and furniture for the 83 returning offices throughout the province. Knowing the date in advance can lead to cost savings by eliminating the necessity of urgent last minute requests that often occur when trying to secure services.

Fixed provincial election dates would offer many benefits to voters and to Elections Alberta in preparing for and administering these events. Knowing the date in advance:

- would enable voters to better plan for their attendance at the polls to vote on election day or at an advance poll,
- would enable voters to better plan and prepare for absentee voting,
- would permit Elections Alberta to confirm the availability of Returning Officers and their key staff,
- would enable Returning Officers to commit to dates for office and polling place rental, allowing them to secure the locations well in advance,
- may enable Returning Officers to select better locations for their returning offices and polling places and to better negotiate lease rates for such space,
- may enable Returning Officers to better negotiate rental rates for returning office furniture and furnishings, and
- would enable Elections Alberta to reserve telephone, cellular and fax numbers in advance for more timely publication of this information for the benefit of the public and political participants.

Schools are essential partners in the delivery of elections. Approximately half of polling stations are located in schools. School administrators have become more reluctant to allow their facilities to be used as polling places, often citing conflicts with planned activities. Concern has also been expressed about students' security, given the extra traffic and the number of people who have access to the school on election day. Many school boards require schools to have a security plan. In the Calgary Public School Division, for example, Returning Officers were required to hire security staff in some schools that were used as polling places in the 2004 and 2008 Provincial General Elections.

A fixed election date would allow more time for advance planning by the school boards and enable them to make arrangements they felt were necessary for student safety, possibly including designating the date as a non-instructional day.

No detailed costing of the potential savings has been done. Potential cost savings may be expected because a fixed election date:

- would permit shorter duration leasing arrangements for equipment and furniture,
- would eliminate the need to commit to computer and facsimile equipment for a longer period than necessary, and eliminate costly storage charges while equipment is held awaiting deployment to Returning Officers,
- would avoid costly last-minute shipping of materials and supplies,
- would allow for timely training and eliminate the need for "refresher courses" for Returning Officers,
- may enable negotiation of better advertisement placement rates,
- could result in fewer premiums, overtime and higher cost urgent requests for services such as printing and communication service installation, and
- could reduce the reliance on courier rather than conventional mail.

Other electoral jurisdictions which have moved to a fixed election date include Canada, British Columbia, Saskatchewan, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, Prince Edward Island, Newfoundland, and Northwest Territories. It has also been a long-standing convention for all Alberta municipalities to conduct elections based on a fixed date.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 9, 39, 52, 55 of the Election Act;
3 of the Legislative Assembly Act

a. Elections Alberta currently has a system of planning and contingency preparations such that it can be ready to deliver an election event at any time, however, a fixed election date would facilitate the management of elections and provide improved service to voters. A fixed election date would be a welcome opportunity to increase efficiency and public awareness.

Staffing for Enumerations and Elections

6. Political parties' supplying enumerators (revised)

Background

Returning Officers are currently required to obtain the names of potential enumerators from the constituency associations established by the political party forming the Government, and from the political party that received the highest, or second-highest, number of votes at the last election. This process originated at a time when two enumerators were assigned to work together, and Returning Officers were asked to pair enumerators recommended by different political parties.

Having political parties recommend enumerators is very cumbersome and has the potential of raising the perception of incorporating political bias into the enumeration process. At the same time, it is difficult for constituency association volunteers to recommend qualified enumerators, when they themselves may not be familiar with current job requirements or when they themselves are competing to recruit reliable and competent individuals to work as campaign volunteers.

From a practical standpoint, many Returning Officers receive few names of potential enumerators who are available and qualified for the job. Some may defer hiring qualified people while waiting for the constituency associations' lists, thereby delaying their establishment and training of a full staff complement. Nonetheless, by law they must first contact the constituency associations by registered mail and wait for a response. This legal requirement to canvass constituency associations for enumerators caused additional time delays and compressed the time available to recruit enumerators in the "open market" for the planned target enumeration prior to the 2008 election. It is particularly difficult to recruit enumerators on a timely basis and conduct a meaningful enumeration when the Returning Officers themselves are not appointed until weeks before the election call.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: 23

a. Repeal the requirement to request names of enumerators from constituency associations and empower the Returning Officers to independently hire competent and reliable staff.

7. Reducing the age requirement of poll clerks

Background

All election officers, including poll clerks, must be eligible electors. The job of the poll clerk is a relatively straightforward one. Reducing the age requirement of poll clerks would offer a valuable opportunity to involve more youth in the election process who could share their experiences with their peers. Extending the involvement to youth may help to increase their participation when they are eligible to vote.

The difficulty of recruiting polling day staff will be exacerbated by the increasingly tight labour market in Alberta. Extending election employment to youth would increase the availability of interested and competent polling day staff and serve to balance the aging trend within the election officer pool.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: 46

a. Reduce the age requirement of a poll clerk from eighteen to sixteen years.

8. Staffing of poll clerk position

Background

The job of the poll clerk is a relatively straightforward one. With the move to a pre-printed Poll Book, the job has been further simplified since the poll clerk only needs to record names and addresses of electors swearing in to vote on polling day.

Effective service to the electorate is still possible without staffing the poll clerk position at all polling stations. Returning Officers would have a smaller staff complement to manage, and with fewer election officers to recruit, could select the most competent persons to work on polling day.

Current provisions allow election officers to move between polling stations in a polling place, so effective back-up during busy times could be handled in that manner. Cost savings may result from the reduced staff complement.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 73, 74, 77.2, 89

a. Empower Returning Officers to staff the poll clerk position on a discretionary basis in a polling place containing multiple polling stations.

b. Add a specific provision to require the recruitment of a poll clerk in a polling place containing only one polling station to ensure security and back-up.

9. Ineligibility of convicted persons to serve as election officers

Background

Persons who have been previously convicted of indictable offences in the past ten years, where the potential penalty exceeded two years, are ineligible to work as election officers on polling day.

This may be a disproportionately strict exclusion for temporary staff. In contrast, applicants to the Alberta Public Service consent to a security clearance check, but are not necessarily deemed ineligible on the basis of a prior criminal record. In the public service, the deputy head may approve recruitment on a discretionary basis, considering issues like currency and severity of an offence, and anticipated risk given the responsibilities of a particular position.

Election officers employed on polling day have access to very limited elector information and work under close supervision. Their involvement is unlikely to pose a risk to the process or to electors.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 46

a. Repeal or soften the prohibition on previously convicted persons working as election officers.

Management of the Register and Lists of Electors

10. Data acquisition from public agencies

Background

The frequency of distribution of Lists of Electors has increased, as have allowable uses by authorized stakeholders. The provisions on distribution and ongoing use between elections contemplate that the Register is updated on an ongoing basis, so that Lists will contain current information on electors.

The Register concept was based on the premise that its database would be periodically updated from information supplied by public agencies which routinely collect such information in the normal course of business. It is essential that updates are provided on a timely basis, at a reasonable cost, and that the information being provided is sufficient to maintain a viable Register.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 13, 18, 19, 20

a. Clarify data access provisions to resolve paramountcy and privacy arguments with respect to other legislation.
b. Strengthen the access provisions to allow the Chief Electoral Officer to prescribe the data elements, and data acquisition schedule, necessary for effective Register maintenance.

11. Data elements contained in the Register (revised)

Background

Effective Register management is dependent on acquiring information on individuals currently held by public agencies to:

a. confirm elector eligibility,
b. verify an individual's identification to facilitate electronic updates, and
c. incorporate secure and stable data elements into the Register, to verify an elector's identity prior to updating information at the elector's request.

Currently, dates of birth, which are provided by voters on a voluntary basis, are used as a stable identification data element and are available for 81% of electors in the Register.

Middle initials are used as another data element. Replacing initials with middle names will address the varied preferences of electors for personal identification, and will facilitate database management by providing a more complete component for matching various external databases with Register data to update the Register of Electors.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 13(5)

a. Expand the list of Register data elements to include Canadian citizenship status (one of the voter eligibility criteria).
b. Authorize the collection of middle names for the Register, rather than middle initials.

12. Address data contained in the Register (revised)

Background

Development of an accurate and up-to-date address base is essential for effective database management. Changes to elector information are facilitated using addresses as a static base. Identifying areas of new growth in a visual representation is essential to ensure completeness within the Register.

Currently, address collection and maintenance are limited to residential addresses. Obtaining non-residential addresses would facilitate the compilation of an effective address register and ensure that electors who are ordinarily resident in these types of accommodation are not overlooked during a data collection process.

The inclusion of non-residential addresses would also facilitate the search for potential polling places, Returning Officers' offices, and so on. Inclusion would also allow for the identification of electoral division assignment for non-residential addresses, which is often requested by owners or other interested parties with respect to a business or community building.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 13(2)(b.1), 13(10)

a. Add a requirement for public bodies to provide demographic and geo-spatial information, in addition to the personal information currently identified, on a cost-recovery basis.
b. Expand the collection of addresses to include those of non-residential buildings.

13. Revision of Register data by an individual

Background

Persons or their agents are entitled to access their Register information to verify accuracy. No specific provision is included to allow them to request revision of their information outside of an enumeration or revision period.

Promoting easy, accessible self-registration within a secure environment will be a valuable tool for maintaining accuracy and currency in the Register.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 13(5), 13(9), 13(11)

a. Include a specific provision to enable electors to request they be added to the Register or that their Register information be revised at any time.
b. Provide specific authority for self-registration of electors.
c. Authorize the conduct of a province-wide registration of grade twelve students, as voters-in-waiting, on an annual basis.

14. Removal of elector information for Secure Special Ballot voters

Background

Electors with a concern for personal security are able to vote in a secure manner by obtaining a Special Ballot from the Chief Electoral Officer. In such cases, voter information that would otherwise appear in the Special Ballot Poll Book used at the polls is replaced by a numeric identifier. The numeric identifier does not reveal the identity of the elector, nor the polling subdivision in which they reside, to anyone reviewing the Poll Book.

If the elector's name and address already appear on the List of Electors, steps must be taken to remove that information, since access to Lists of Electors is provided to candidates and political parties as well as to others wishing to view it within the offices of the Returning Officers.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 116.1

a. Require election officers, political parties and candidates to delete or obscure personal information belonging to Secure Special Ballot voters from all copies of the List of Electors.

15. Use of Poll Books containing the List of Electors

Background

Candidates or their official agents may request copies of Poll Books, for their own electoral divisions, during a 30 day period following an election. The Poll Books contain a List of Electors (all persons registered to vote) and are annotated to identify all persons who voted. There is currently no specific restriction placed on the use of that information.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 152

a. Control the use of information contained in Poll Books, by candidates and their official agents, to electoral purposes only.

Public Information

16. Provision of election information to voters

Background

Research indicates that one of the reasons electors do not vote is because of a lack of access to necessary information about where, how and when to vote. Providing increased direction to these electors may reduce administrative barriers to voting and may serve to engage more electors.

Delivering information to each residence in the province on where, how and when to vote will provide valuable information to all electors, regardless of whether their personal information appears on a List of Electors. It will also provide contact information if they wish to find out if their name is included in the Register, or if they need additional information.

Two types of information are recommended:

a. a brochure delivered to each residence, early in the election period, providing general information on how and when to vote; and

b. a "where-to-vote" card delivered to each residence, prior to the Advance Polls, providing specific information on voting times and polling place locations.

Once an awareness of these resources has been established, they could potentially replace newspaper advertising. With dwindling subscription levels, newspaper advertisements may no longer be the most effective notification method.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 55

a. Add specific authorization for the Chief Electoral Officer to communicate with the public, using appropriate media, in order to provide information about the election process and their democratic right to vote.

17. Disclosure of campaign advertisers (revised)

Background

Every printed or electronic advertisement is currently required to contain the name of the sponsor. "Sponsor" is an ambiguous term, with no definition in the Act. Contacting the sponsors "John Smith" or "Friends of (candidate name)" is virtually impossible, should concerns arise, which effectively provides the sponsor with anonymity and distance from possible enforcement efforts, should they become necessary. Also, the current provisions dealing with sponsorship did not anticipate "attack" or "negative" advertising. The exemption from sponsorship or authorization for advertisements bearing the name of a registered political party or the name of a candidate would in no way identify who had placed or authorized an "attack" ad.

Greater transparency and consistency would be achieved by requiring that all advertisements placed by political entities include an authorization by the chief financial officer or official agent. Advertisements placed by third parties should also contain sponsorship information. Contact information for both should be available to the public via the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer.

a. Require that all advertisements placed by a political entity include an authorization by the chief financial officer or official agent.
b. Require that all advertisements placed by an individual or group other than a political entity, include name and contact information of the sponsor.
c. Require an individual or group other than a political entity, which advertises during an election period, to register with the Chief Electoral Officer.

18. Restrictions on advertising (revised)

Background

The current prohibition on advertising precludes placement of campaign advertisements in or on a building in which a polling place is located. There is no prohibition on advertising on the grounds of the polling place or on adjacent public property.

Expanding the area in which advertisements are prohibited would serve to avoid the perception of political interference and undue influence when electors attend voting stations. It would provide campaign workers and election officers with a clear set of guidelines for placement of advertising.

The Act is also silent with respect to the suspension of Government advertising during elections. Adding a restriction on Government advertising during the campaign period would enshrine current policy into legislation.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 134, 135

a. Include distance limits for the placement of advertising near polling places.

b. Authorize election officers to cause advertising to be removed that is in contravention of the distance limits.

c. Define "advertising" in 1(1) to include all formats of advertising: electronic, paper, and all other materials.

d. Delete the examples of campaign materials which appear in the Act, which provide only a partial listing of advertisements included in the proposed definition. Replacing the current examples with the term "advertising" will allow for a broader meaning and concise wording.

e. Prohibit Government departments and agencies from advertising any information with respect to the activities of the department, with the exception of information that must be published in the interests of public health, safety or in accordance with legislation.

Voting Process

19. Confirmation of identity for Special Ballot voting (revised)

Background

The integrity of the List of Electors is a critical component in the conduct of a free and fair election process. The List is used both to facilitate the vote and to limit voting rights to eligible voters. Collection of information for the List must contain appropriate safeguards to assure stakeholders of the legitimacy of the information it contains. These safeguards must be balanced with the need to avoid an overly stringent data collection protocol that may erect unnecessary administrative barriers.

Compilation of the List has traditionally included the enumeration process, in which individuals provide information via personal contact with an enumerator. Additions to the List are permitted during a revision period and on polling day. These are also activities which involve personal contact with an election officer. The transparency afforded by personal contact is carried through to the voting process at advance polls, mobile polls and at the regular polls established to take the vote on polling day.

The Special Ballot presents an inconsistency in that an individual may obtain a ballot from a remote location, without this element of personal contact. Currently an individual may apply for a Special Ballot without providing identification. An individual who is not on the List of Electors is authorized to be added to the List at the time the Special Ballot is returned. Special Ballots may be sent across the world in response to a verbal or emailed request, with no real opportunity for verifying the identity or voting eligibility of the recipient.

Although widespread abuse has not been identified, this system is open to voting fraud, as was found in the 2004 general election.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 116, 118

a. Add a requirement for Special Ballot applicants to provide suitable identification or copies thereof before issuing a Special Ballot package.

20. Transmission of Special Ballots (revised)

Background

Legislation does not prescribe the means for provision and return of Special Ballots.

Past practice has been to permit political party volunteers to pick up Special Ballots from the Returning Officers' offices for delivery to electors and return to the Returning Officers with little or no control. This has occurred after the elector makes the necessary request by one of the means prescribed by the Act.

This affords the opportunity for political influence in the voting process. Having election officers transmit Special Ballots to and from electors, where transmission by mail is not appropriate, removes the opportunity for partisan interference in the voting process. If it is not possible for the Returning Officer to mail or hand-deliver a Special Ballot, pick up of the Special Ballot must be by the applicant or by a person designated on the application form. The person designated to pick up a Special Ballot on behalf of an elector should be required to provide satisfactory identification before the Special Ballot will be released to his or her custody.

According to the Act, an elector's name is marked off the voters list only after the Special Ballot is returned. The elector's name should be marked off the voters list at the time of issuance.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 116, 118

a. Specify that Special Ballots are to be delivered and/or picked up by election officers if mail service is not appropriate.

b. In the case of a voter who is unable to complete a Special Ballot independently, allow the election officer to provide assistance in completing the Special Ballot in the presence of the voter and a witness.

c. Require suitable identification from any individual designated to pick up Special Ballot materials on an elector's behalf.

d. Specify that the name of an elector issued a Special Ballot be marked off the voters list as having voted.

21. Restrictions on Advance Poll voting (revised)

Background

Prior to the 2004 election, electors wishing to vote at the Advance Polls were required to meet one of several criteria set out in the Act (disability, absence, or participation as an election officer or campaign worker which required their presence outside of their polling subdivision). Criteria were relaxed for the 2004 election to allow electors to vote in the Advance Polls if they believed that they would be unable to vote on polling day.

Parliamentary Counsel has advised that a person would have to be "unable" to vote, in the sense that they were lacking the ability or power to do so. A voter would not be eligible to use the Advance Poll if other options were inconvenient.

Advance Poll restrictions could be eliminated in an effort to make voting easier and more accessible through the removal of administrative barriers. This would accommodate the demanding and unpredictable schedules of electors who find that conflicting priorities keep them from voting during the prescribed hours on the one particular day designated for voting.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 98, 99

a. Eliminate eligibility criteria associated with Advance Poll voting to enable any elector to vote at the Advance Polls.

b. Amend the prescribed declaration so it does not require a reason for attendance at the Advance Poll, but confirms the elector's eligibility and provides an undertaking that the elector has not already voted and would not attempt to vote again.

22. Prohibition on voters depositing ballots into the ballot box

Background

Voters are required to surrender their marked ballots, once completed, to the deputy returning officer. The deputy returning officer removes and destroys the counterfoil (which contains a unique number that could identify the ballot) and deposits the ballot into the ballot box. The number on the counterfoil is used to facilitate correct annotation of the Poll Book (to accurately record which voter has voted).

A number of voters have expressed the desire to deposit their own ballots, both to finalize the voting process and to ensure confidentiality of the vote. Other jurisdictions, including Canada, British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario, New Brunswick, and Quebec, allow electors to deposit their ballots in the ballot box themselves.

Election officers are sometimes placed in the untenable situation of disallowing a practice that is permitted at other elections, or circumventing the law in an attempt to placate voters.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 96, 101, 109

a. Authorize the voter to deposit his or her completed ballot into the ballot box, after the deputy returning officer has removed the counterfoil.

b. In the case of voter assistance, authorize the voter or the friend of the voter to deposit the completed ballot into the ballot box, after the deputy returning officer has removed the counterfoil.

Ballot Content

23. Amendment to prescribed ballot content

Background

Candidates are currently limited to providing a middle initial, rather than a middle name, for use on the ballot. This may not allow a candidate to be identified by the name of his or her choice. The legislation already seems to provide for a certain element of choice by allowing for nicknames on the ballot.

Allowing use of a middle name would address the perception of unfairness, since currently a candidate with a composite first name “Marylynn” would be permitted to use her name of choice, while a candidate with the first name “Mary” and middle name “Lynn” would not.

Ballots are currently required to include the printer’s name. Since ballots are currently printed on secure ballot paper, we are not aware of an operational reason for this practice.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 83, 83(8)

a. Add a middle name to the list of name elements which may appear on the ballot.

b. Repeal the requirement to include the printer’s name on the back of the ballot.

Inmate Participation

24. Inmate voting prohibition (updated)

Background

In Byatt v. Alberta [Chief Electoral Officer] [1998] A.J. 399, the Alberta Court of Appeal struck down an earlier provision of the Election Act, RSA 1980, that barred all prisoners from voting. The Court of Appeal decided it was contrary to section 3 of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms and that it was too sweeping a prohibition to be saved under section 1 of the Charter. However, the Court suggested that it would be possible to tailor a limitation on prisoner voting that would survive a Charter challenge. The Court suggested that if sentences of less than 10 days and sentences for failure to pay fines were excluded, the prohibition could well survive a Charter challenge. The Alberta Legislature followed this suggestion by the Court in enacting what is now section 45(c) of the Election Act. The majority of inmates in Alberta are now prohibited from voting. Only those imprisoned for ten days or less, or for non-payment of fines, are currently eligible to vote.

After Byatt, the Supreme Court of Canada gave very clear direction on the Charter Right of prisoners to vote in Sauvé v. Canada [2002] S.C.J. 66. The landmark Supreme Court decision, handed down in 2002, set aside the prohibition on inmates serving two years or more from voting in federal elections. The Sauvé decision viewed the disenfranchisement of prisoners as a violation of the Canadian Charter of Rights and Freedoms, stating that "democratic participation is not only a matter of theory but also of practice". Current prohibitions on inmate voting in Alberta's Election Act are unlikely to withstand a Court challenge. In view of the Sauvé decision, the musings of the Court of Appeal in Byatt v. Alberta regarding a tailored limitation have effectively been overruled. There is now little doubt that section 45(c) of Alberta's Election Act would be found to be unconstitutional.

Under section 52 of the Constitution Act, the Constitution of Canada, including the Charter, is the supreme law of Canada and any law that is inconsistent with it is of no force and effect. In a number of cases, the Supreme Court has decided that if a statutory decision maker (e.g. Chief Electoral Officer) is expressly or impliedly required to decide questions of law, he can decide the constitutionality of any Act that he is called upon to administer. However, the Alberta Legislature has reacted to these decisions by adopting the Administrative Procedures and Jurisdiction Act. Part 2 of this Act removes the right of decision makers to decide constitutional questions except for a limited number of decision makers who are identified in the regulations. The Chief Electoral Officer is not one of the decision makers who is authorized to decide constitutional questions. Therefore, the Chief Electoral Officer does not have the jurisdiction to disregard section 45(c) on the grounds that it is contrary to the Charter. This will take a court to issue a declaration that the section is invalid.

A Court order to remove the prohibition during an election would create administrative challenges, raising questions about overall effectiveness of the electoral process. With a sufficient amount of lead time it would not be difficult to extend the franchise to institutionalized prisoners. Prisoners would vote by Special Ballot. Contingency plans were developed for this possibility during the 2008 general election.

In the Sauvé case, the same Supreme Court decision observed that a prohibition on an inmate's participation as a candidate may not be inappropriate. It is interesting to note that while Alberta's Election Act prohibits most inmates from voting, it does not preclude an inmate from being nominated as a candidate. Prohibiting the participation of inmates in that important role may respect the Court decision by restricting inmates' participation in the democratic process to an appropriate degree.

Other electoral jurisdictions including British Columbia, New Brunswick, Newfoundland, Northwest Territories, Nova Scotia, Nunavut, Ontario, Prince Edward Island, Quebec, Saskatchewan, and Yukon have no restrictions on inmate voting. Although federal election legislation currently prohibits some inmates from voting, in practice, the franchise has been extended to include all inmates subsequent to the Court's ruling in the Sauvé case.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 1(3), 45(c), 56, 57, 116(1)(c)

a. Repeal the prohibition on inmates' voting.

b. Expand the definition of inmates' ordinary residence to accommodate those with no fixed address at the time of arrest:
"The place of ordinary residence of an incarcerated elector is the first of the following places for which the elector knows the civic and mailing addresses:

   i. his or her residence before being incarcerated;

   ii. the residence of the spouse, the common-law partner, a relative or a dependant of the elector, a relative of his or her spouse or common-law partner or a person with whom the elector would live but for his or her incarceration;

   iii. the place of his or her arrest; or

   iv. the last court where the elector was convicted and sentenced."

c. Prohibit inmates' nomination as candidates.

Time Limit on Collecting from a Candidate

25. Limitation of two months for collection of campaign debt/Monetary claims against a candidate (revised)

Background

A person who has a monetary claim against a candidate must submit it no later than two months after polling day, or the right to recover the claim is barred. This provision is intended to ensure that election expenses are fully accounted for prior to the filing of the candidate's financial statement within 4 months after polling day. However, this contravenes conventional business practice in the province, which allows for two years to collect amounts owing. This provision may penalize a person or business because of an administrative oversight. More importantly, it could be used as a mechanism to circumvent the disclosure provisions within the EFCD Act. A candidate could contract with a friendly supplier in relation to the campaign. An intentional delay in submitting an invoice would result in non-collection without, on the face of it, triggering a breach of sections 16 or 17 of the EFCD Act. The value of the product or service would not appear on the candidate's financial statement as either a monetary donation or a valued contribution.

Recommendations

a. Revise the filing requirement to require candidates to record outstanding invoices as unpaid expenses.

b. Bar claims in respect of election expenses that are not sent to the chief financial officer of the candidate within 3 months of polling day, unless the claim is approved by a court in any proceeding.

c. Deem the amount of any claim barred under section 210 as a contribution.

d. Remove section 210 from the Election Act and include it in the EFCD Act.

Chief Electoral Officer Duties and Powers

26. Investigative powers

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer or his representative may carry out an inquiry, conduct an examination, or conduct a periodic investigation under the EFCD Act and has all the powers of a commissioner under the Public Inquiries Act. There are no similar investigative or inquiry powers under the Election Act.

At the same time, a prosecution cannot be instituted pursuant to the Election Act without the consent of the Chief Electoral Officer. This places the Chief Electoral Officer in the untenable position of being expected to provide or withhold consent to a prosecution without being in a position to properly examine the matter to form an opinion as to whether or not the necessary facts exist to warrant a prosecution.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 4(1)(b), 163.1 of the Election Act; 5 of the EFCD Act

a. Provide the Chief Electoral Officer with investigative powers under the Election Act.

b. Add specific authority to enable the Chief Electoral Officer to conduct investigations by delegating authority to investigator(s) appointed by the Chief Electoral Officer for that purpose.

c. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to compel the production of information from an individual or group, including but not limited to political entities, if the information is necessary in the course of the investigation.

d. Add specific direction that an investigation shall be conducted in private.

27. Time limit on prosecutions (revised)

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer must consent to any prosecution under the Act. Currently, a prosecution cannot commence more than two years following the date of commission of the alleged offence.

This restricts the pursuit of justice in situations where the offence is not identified well within the two-year timeframe. It requires that the alleged offence is detected or reported, the matter investigated, and sufficient time is available for the Chief Electoral Officer to form an opinion that prosecution is warranted before the matter is referred to Alberta Justice and Attorney General. At this point, the Minister of Justice may very well want to conduct a further examination of the matter before deciding whether or not to institute a prosecution. Because of the restrictive nature of this timeframe, several critical dates have recently been missed by the Special Prosecutions and Regulatory Prosecutions branches.

a. Extend the time limit on prosecutions, so that prosecution may commence up to one year following the date on which the Chief Electoral Officer believes that an offence has been committed.

b. Require political parties and candidates to retain records related to a campaign for a period of 5 years.

c. Require political parties and constituency associations to retain records related to annual activities for a period of 5 years.

28. Recommendations to the Legislative Assembly

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer is responsible for providing guidance, direction and supervision respecting the conduct of elections and enumerations. The Chief Electoral Officer is required to submit a report concerning election and enumeration activities to the Legislative Assembly, via the Standing Committee on Legislative Offices, after each event. A reporting requirement also exists under the EFCD Act, for the Chief Electoral Officer to report to the Speaker of the Assembly on annual financial activities. Aside from this inconsistency in reporting structure which is addressed as the first recommendation under the section on the EFCD Act, there is no established mechanism for the Chief Electoral Officer to submit formal recommendations for legislative amendments to the Legislative Assembly.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 4(3)

a. Add specific direction for the Chief Electoral Officer to submit recommendations to the Legislative Assembly on an annual basis, in order to initiate dialogue concerning topical issues on a timely basis.

29. Protection from legal action

Background

Current legislation does not protect the Chief Electoral Officer from liability in fulfilling legislated responsibilities. Liability protection and indemnification should be accorded, as is the case with other Officers of the Legislature.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 4, 5 of the Election Act;
60 of the Freedom of Information and Protection of Privacy Act;
45 of the Conflicts of Interest Act;
25 of the Ombudsman Act

a. Include liability protection and indemnification for the Chief Electoral Officer and persons acting for or under his or her direction.

OCTOBER 2006 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION ACT (THE ACT)—HOUSEKEEPING

Addition of Definitions

30. Definition of advertising

Background

No definition currently exists. Adding a definition would clarify that the term "advertising" is intended to include both electronic and print media when it appears in the Election Act and the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act, and that legislated requirements and restrictions apply to all media.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 1(1)

a. Add a definition of advertising which includes messages prepared for general distribution in print form, including information in a magazine, brochure, newspaper, billboard or poster, or in electronic form, including radio, television, telephone, Internet website or message, electronic mail, facsimile, or text message.

31. Definition of declined ballot

Background

No definition currently exists for the circumstance in which a voter is issued a ballot but declines to mark it. The definition of a spoiled ballot in the Act does not apply to such a scenario.

A definition would reduce confusion for election officers, thereby increasing the accuracy of the unofficial count, and would reduce confusion for candidates, political parties and other stakeholders.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 1(1), 107(2)

a. Add a definition of a declined ballot to identify it as a ballot that has been returned by the elector to the deputy returning officer, with the indication that the elector does not wish to mark the ballot.

32. Definition of rejected ballot

Background

No definition currently exists for the circumstance in which a ballot is rejected by the deputy returning officer at the unofficial count, based on criteria identified in the Act. The definition of a spoiled ballot in the Act does not apply to such a scenario.

Adding a definition would reduce confusion for election officers and scrutineers, thereby increasing the accuracy of the unofficial count, and would reduce confusion for candidates, political parties and other stakeholders.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 1(1), 111(5)

a. Add a definition of a rejected ballot to identify it as a ballot that has been returned by the elector to the deputy returning officer, placed into the ballot box along with ballots returned by other electors, and which cannot be counted in accordance with section 111(5).

Senior Management Appointments

33. Deputy Chief Electoral Officer

Background

Current wording implies that the appointment of the Deputy Chief Electoral Officer is outside of the Public Service Act. While this is true of the Chief Electoral Officer, it is not the case with the Deputy.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 5(1)

a. Clarify the wording to reflect the appointment of the Deputy Chief Electoral Officer pursuant to the Public Service Act.

34. Compensation adjustment process for Chief Electoral Officer position

Background

The Standing Committee on Legislative Offices has a statutory requirement to review the salary of the Chief Electoral Officer on an annual basis. Although a salary range is provided to establish a broad framework for this review, there is no established mechanism or comparators for an annual review. This is different from the existing practice for adjusting salaries of those positions at comparable levels which are created pursuant to the Public Service Act.

Establishing the salary of the Chief Electoral Officer through a legislative provision would eliminate the redundancy of conducting a similar review process to the one used to adjust the salary range of comparable positions within the public service. Linking the Chief Electoral Officer salary to an appropriate classification benchmark within the public service prevents salary adjustments that are out of step with public service guidelines, ensures timeliness of recognized adjustments and eliminates the need for Committee involvement in a routine process. Having the Standing Committee directly involved in the determination of salary and benefits for the Chief Electoral Officer could lead to the appearance that his independence could be compromised by that relationship.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 6

a. Establish a mechanism for annual review which entitles the Chief Electoral Officer to receive any benefits of office and economic adjustments to the salary range and to the salary that are provided generally to deputy ministers in the Alberta Public Service.

Recruitment of Election Clerks and Administrative Assistants

35. Administrative Assistant selection process

Background

Administrative Assistants are currently limited to appointment in the electoral division in which they reside. This may not result in the selection of the most qualified person if there is a shortage of interested, capable individuals within a particular geographic area.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 47.1(1)

a. Allow for appointment of an Administrative Assistant from outside of the electoral division, with the prior written approval of the Chief Electoral Officer, if no suitable candidate can be found within the area.

36. Retention of the oaths of election officer

Background

Prescribed oaths completed by Election Clerks and Administrative Assistants are currently required to be attached to the Writ of Election. Retaining these oaths along with those of all other election officers would streamline this part of the administrative process. All oaths are retained by the Chief Electoral Officer in accordance with legislation, in order to facilitate post-election access and review, as required.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 47(4), 47.1(3)

a. Repeal the requirement for attaching the oaths to the Writ of Election.

37. Hiring of family members by the Returning Officer

Background

Recruitment of election officers must be equitable in both fact and perception. Following sound recruitment principles within an open, merit-based process supports that objective.

In past, some Returning Officers wished to hire spouses or other immediate family members to perform the role of Election Clerk or Administrative Assistant. This carried the potential for criticism of nepotism. It also carried the risk of losing all or most key election staff within the electoral division, in the event of a family emergency.

a. Prohibit the recruitment of immediate family members by the Returning Officer, for the role of Election Clerk.
b. Prohibit the recruitment of an Administrative Assistant who is an immediate family member of the Returning Officer or Election Clerk.

Note: These amendments will not be necessary if the recommended amendment for the recruitment of Returning Officers and Election Clerks by the Chief Electoral Officer is made, in which case, the Chief Electoral Officer would issue a directive to this effect.

Candidate Nomination Process

38. Requirement for the filing of original documents (revised)

Background

Past practice has been to require submission of the original Nomination Paper, rather than a faxed or emailed copy. Having an original document allows the Returning Officer to confirm that information wasn't tampered with. It also ensures sufficient clarity of nominators' signatures and address information for Returning Officers to satisfy themselves that all requirements have been met.

Filing this important document in original format, should be a legislated requirement rather than internal policy.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: 61

a. Specify that original documents must be filed when submitting Nomination Papers.

39. Method for submitting a nomination deposit (revised)

Background

Legislation currently allows candidates to tender a $500 nomination deposit in cash, by certified cheque or by money order.

If the practice of requiring a nomination deposit is to continue, accepting cash could pose a security risk for Returning Officers who could potentially receive large sums of money. It also eliminates the ability to trace and replace a deposit if one should be stolen or misplaced.

Also, if the practice of requiring a nomination deposit is to continue, political parties have expressed interest in writing a single cheque for the deposits of all their candidates. The Act specifies that the deposit accompany the Nomination Paper.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 61, 62

a. If the requirement for a candidate nomination deposit continues, repeal the option for candidates to provide a cash deposit. Limit the methods of tender to certified cheques or money orders.

b. If the requirement for a candidate nomination deposit continues, permit deposits to be pre-paid by endorsing registered political parties.

40. Nomination deposit refund (revised)

Background

The EFCD Act defines a contribution, and what constitutes a contribution. If a candidate expends "personal funds" for the nomination deposit, that constitutes a contribution, and an expense, and must be recorded as such. Candidates are currently entitled to receive a tax receipt for this contribution.

Since all deposits, including a candidate's personal funds contributed to his or her campaign, must be deposited into a campaign account, the nomination deposit comes from campaign funds and not the candidate's personal funds. Therefore, a refund should be directed to the campaign and not the candidate. Returning the nomination deposit refund to the candidate could result in a situation where a tax receipt is issued to the candidate for a contribution (nomination deposit) when the contribution (nomination refund) is ultimately returned to the candidate. Directing the refund to the campaign is consistent with the intent of the legislation and ensures that the return of funds is appropriately recorded on the financial statement.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 62 of the Election Act;
1(1)(e), 17(5) of the EFCD Act

a. If the requirement for a candidate nomination deposit continues, direct that a full or partial nomination deposit refund shall be returned to the chief financial officer, on behalf of the campaign, or to the party.

b. Include a reference to section 17(5) of the EFCD Act, which defines money paid by a candidate from his or her personal funds as a contribution.

41. Candidates ceasing to be nominated

Background

Current wording implies that only those candidates who were nominated by a constituency association cease to be candidates if they fail to file nomination papers. All candidates cease to be nominated if they fail to file nomination papers by the close of nominations, and this should be clarified.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 59(3)(a)

a. Revise the section reference from 1(1)(c)(iii) to 1(1)(c) to reflect that all candidates who fail to file nomination papers by the close of nominations cease to be nominated.

Effective Date of Legislative Amendments

42. Implementing legislative amendments (revised)

Background

The Act does not establish a timeframe for implementing legislative changes. Sufficient time is required to implement changes, particularly those identified as substantive. Modifications to resources, training, forms, guides and public information must be planned and executed in a methodical manner in order to effectively communicate and implement the desired change.

Legislation in some jurisdictions directs that amendments will not apply to an election if the Writ is issued within a certain time period. For example, British Columbia sets the timeframe at six months and Manitoba, at ninety days.

Recommendation Relevant Section: No reference in the Act

a. Direct that an amendment to this Act does not apply to an election for which a writ is issued within 6 months after the amendment comes into force.

OCTOBER 2006 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION FINANCES AND CONTRIBUTIONS DISCLOSURE (EFCD) ACT—SUBSTANTIVE

1. Annual reporting

Background

Inconsistencies appear in the reporting requirements pursuant to the Election Act and the EFCD Act. Reporting on provincial enumerations and elections is directed to the Standing Committee on Legislative Offices, whereas annual reporting on financial activities is directed to the Speaker of the Legislative Assembly.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 4

a. Standardize reporting requirements by directing all reporting to the Legislative Assembly through the Speaker.

2. Candidates' nomination deposits (revised)

Background

The process for refunding candidates' nomination deposits was revised prior to the 2004 election. Candidates received half of their deposit back for filing a financial statement within the prescribed timeline, and half for receiving the most votes, or 50% or more of the votes received by the candidate with the highest number of votes.

Previously, candidates who paid their own nomination deposits and obtained a refund simply returned the refund to their own funds. They expected to continue this practice in the 2004 election. Funds for nomination deposits from a candidate's personal funds should always have been recorded as a contribution and an expense, but this reporting practice has been inconsistently applied.

All contributions made to registered parties, registered constituency associations and registered candidates during an annual or campaign period generate an official receipt and result in an Alberta Tax Credit to the contributor. In the case of a $500 contribution, the resulting Alberta Tax Credit would be $300. It is important to note that when candidates file their nomination papers and provide the $500 nomination deposit, it becomes a campaign expense and if the candidates paid the deposit from their own funds, it becomes a campaign contribution which is eligible for a tax credit. In the scenario where a candidate receives a refund and returns it to his or her own funds, the candidate is able to receive a tax benefit despite the fact that the contribution was returned. To ensure that candidates are not able to benefit from this situation, any return of the nomination deposit should be paid to the chief financial officers and not be refunded back to the candidates by either Elections Alberta or the candidates' campaign funds.

Clarity is required to ensure that this process is understood and to ensure that compliance with the legislation is enforced.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 1(1)(e), 17(5) of the EFCD Act; 62 of the Election Act

a. If the requirement for a candidate nomination deposit continues, clarify that a nomination deposit paid by the candidate out of his or her own funds becomes a contribution, and must be recorded as such.
b. If the requirement for a candidate nomination deposit continues, clarify that any refund of the nomination deposit or portion thereof, is provided to the chief financial officer in a cheque made payable to the campaign or party. This amount cannot be paid back to the candidate as a refund but can only be used for paying expenses occurring during the campaign period.

3. Excess and prohibited contributions (updated)

Background

A chief financial officer is required to notify the Chief Electoral Officer, in writing, if an excessive contribution, a contribution from a prohibited corporation, or a contribution which does not belong to the contributor has been accepted in contravention of the Act.

The EFCD Act enables the Chief Electoral Officer to apply a penalty to the person, corporation, trade union or employee organization responsible for an excessive contribution, or a contribution made by a prohibited corporation. The penalty applied by the Chief Electoral Officer must be an amount equivalent to the amount by which the contribution or contributions exceeded the amount permitted under the EFCD Act. There is no similar provision for the application of a penalty to a contributor who has made a contribution using funds that did not belong to the contributor.

There is also no consequence for a political entity that knowingly solicits and accepts a prohibited contribution. This is in contrast to the provision dealing with excessive contributions where there is a provision that applies to the registered party, constituency association or candidates.

There is also no provision requiring the recipient to return or surrender an excessive contribution, a prohibited contribution, or a contribution not belonging to a contributor.

In the case of anonymous contributions in excess of $50, which cannot be returned to the contributor, funds are paid to the Chief Electoral Officer for deposit to the General Revenue Fund.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 15, 16, 19, 20, 21, 34, 51

a. Expand the penalty provisions to empower the Chief Electoral Officer to apply a penalty to a contributor using funds that did not belong to the contributor.

b. Require the recipient to return or surrender funds:
   i. in the amount above the contribution limit in the case of an excessive contribution, ii. in the full amount in the case of a prohibited corporation, and
   iii. in the full amount in the case of a contribution not belonging to the contributor to either the contributor or to the Chief Electoral Officer for deposit to the General Revenue Fund.

c. Include a penalty provision for political entities that knowingly solicit or accept prohibited contributions.

4. Identification of controlled corporations (revised)

Background

The concept of the prohibited corporation was introduced in 1984. It was initially restricted to provincial corporations and their subsidiaries. The EFCD Act was amended in 2004 to introduce the current definition of "prohibited corporation", which includes municipalities. In introducing second reading of the amendments, Minister Hancock referred to the fact that the amendments were being made at the request of the Chief Electoral Officer. The Minister said:

> "Other changes will clarify that public institutions and their subsidiaries, such as municipalities, regional health boards, school boards, are prohibited from making political contributions"

It is likely that the cross reference in section 1(3) of the EFCD Act to section 256 of the Income Tax Act was included to achieve this result, but it has not achieved the clarity sought in this area. A number of subsidiaries of municipalities have taken the position that the rules against prohibited corporations making contributions do not apply to them. Alberta Justice (Special Prosecutions) agrees with those corporations and has declined to prosecute cases of contributions by municipal subsidiaries. The definition of "prohibited corporations" should be amended so that there can be no question of its application to subsidiaries of municipalities and Metis Settlements. These amendments to the EFCD Act could be as follows:

a. Amend the definition of a prohibited corporation to expressly include corporations controlled by municipalities and Metis Settlements.

b. Add a clear definition of what "controlled" means. It should be defined to mean a situation where a majority of the voting shares are held by the municipality, directly or through a trust, or where the municipality appoints all or a majority of the members of the corporation. (Model language can be found in the Municipal Government Act, section 1(2).

5. Consistent use of the principle of ordinary residence

Background

The legislation prohibits contributions from persons who are normally resident outside of Alberta. There is no specific definition of the term "normally resident", leaving it open for interpretation.

Ordinary residence is specifically defined in the Election Act as being determined with the application of a series of rules. Replacement of "normally" with "ordinarily" resident would more clearly identify the group of persons prohibited from making contributions under the EFCD Act.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 16

a. Replace the term "normally" with "ordinarily" resident.

b. Include a definition of "ordinarily resident", which is consistent with the definition in the Election Act.

6. Information required for financial statements

Background

Chief financial officers of registered parties and registered constituency associations are required to prepare and file financial statements.

The requirement that "proper records be kept of all income" excludes any mention of the requirement to keep proper records of all expenses, assets and liabilities.

Sections relating specifically to financial filing requirements of constituency associations also make no reference to reporting of assets and liabilities.

Specific mention of expenses, assets and liabilities will clarify the requirement for proper completion of financial statements.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 30(a), 42(1)(b)

a. Expand the listing of proper records to include those related to expenses, assets and liabilities.

7. Fund-raising events (revised)

Background

Section 23(3)(b) provides a short-hand way for political entities to apportion expenses and contributions from fund-raising functions. Currently, if the individual charge is $50 or less, it is not considered to be a contribution unless the contributor requests that it be so considered. In such a case, half is considered to be a contribution and half is considered to be an expense. If the charge is more than $50, $25 is allowed for expenses and the balance is considered to be a contribution.

However, the provisions are somewhat outdated since it has not been changed since the EFCD Act was proclaimed in 1978. Consideration should be given to adjust the expense portion of the fund-raising ticket price to be more representative of the actual cost per person of the function. As costs for events have increased with inflation, the flat rate of $25 for expenses may not be reflective of the true costs of different kinds of fund-raising events.

Other jurisdictions in Canada with fund-raising function provisions vary from stating that any funds raised at fund-raising events are not to be considered as contributions, to 25% of the price of the ticket to be considered as an expense and the 75% balance of the price to be considered as a contribution.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 23(3)(b)

a. Consideration should be given to revise s. 23(3)(b) to state that if the individual charge is between $51 and $100, the expense portion of the ticket price would be $25 and, if the individual charge is over $100, the expense portion would be 25% of the ticket price.

8. Records of contributions (updated)

Background

Section 32 describes the records that are required to be maintained by the recipient of contributions. Currently the EFCD Act requires recording the name, address of the contributor and amount of the contribution. There is no requirement for recording the date the contribution was received by the recipient. It is not possible to enforce contribution rules which restrict contribution amounts on an annual and campaign period basis without knowing when contributions were received.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 32

a. Add date received to the list of information to be recorded in sections 32(1), 32(3)(b) and 32(4)(b).

9. Time limit on prosecutions (updated)

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer must consent to any prosecution under the EFCD Act. Currently, a prosecution cannot commence more than two years following the date of commission of the alleged offence.

This restricts the pursuit of justice in situations where the offence is not identified well within the two-year timeframe. It requires that the alleged offence is detected or reported, the matter investigated, and sufficient time is available for the Chief Electoral Officer to form an opinion that prosecution is warranted before the matter is referred to Alberta Justice and Attorney General. At this point, the Minister of Justice may very well want to conduct a further examination of the matter before deciding whether or not to institute a prosecution. Because of the restrictive nature of this timeframe, several critical dates have recently been missed by the Special Prosecutions and Regulatory Prosecutions branches.

a. Extend the time limit on prosecutions, so that prosecution may commence up to one year following the date on which the Chief Electoral Officer believes that an offence has been committed.
b. Require political parties and candidates to retain records related to a campaign for a period of 5 years.
c. Require political parties and constituency associations to retain records related to annual activities for a period of 5 years.

OCTOBER 2006 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION FINANCES AND CONTRIBUTIONS DISCLOSURE (EFCD) ACT—HOUSEKEEPING

10. Significance of registration

Background

There is an important distinction in the EFCD Act between the various political entities (political parties, candidates, and constituency associations) and "registered" political entities. This distinction has not been consistently observed in the drafting of the current EFCD Act.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: Listed below

a. Add the term "registered" to the following:

- Section 4(1)(b)(i) – to constituency association
- Section 5(3) – to party, constituency association and candidate
- Section 9(2)(a)(iii) – to constituency association
- Section 10(1)(b), 10(3), 10(4) – to constituency association
- Section 10(5) – to constituency association and candidate
- Section 43(2) – to constituency association

11. Powers of Chief Electoral Officer vs. duties of political entities

Background

Under section 5, Powers of the Chief Electoral Officer, there is a provision that deals with the retention of records by political entities. Retention of political entity records is not a power of the Chief Electoral Officer. This provision should be removed and placed elsewhere in the EFCD Act.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 5(4)

a. Move clause 5(4) to another section of the Act, possibly as section 6(7).

12. Update Terminology

Background

There are several instances of out-dated terminology used in the EFCD Act which should be changed.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 10(12), 15(2), 51(3), 40(1)(a)

a. Update all references to the Provincial Treasurer with Minister of Finance.

b. Change "treasury branch" to "Alberta Treasury Branches (ATB Financial)"

JANUARY 2007 RECOMMENDATION FOR AMENDMENT TO THE ELECTION FINANCES AND CONTRIBUTIONS DISCLOSURE (EFCD) ACT—SUBSTANTIVE

13. Regulation of leadership contests

Background

This recommendation would have been included along with the Chief Electoral Officer's October 31, 2006 recommendations for amendments had it not been for the fact that one of the registered political parties was in the process of holding a leadership contest at the time. It was felt that it would not have been appropriate to have weighed into the public debate regarding the regulation of leadership contests by making a formal recommendation at the time.

There are 4 jurisdictions in Canada that regulate leadership contests including British Columbia, Manitoba, Ontario and Canada. The Royal Commission on Electoral Reform and Party Financing recommended that there be public financial disclosure rules for leadership contests in the interests of promoting integrity and fairness in the electoral process.

It was acknowledged by the Commission that leadership selection is the purview of political parties and the rules should not be too restrictive or intrusive so as to impair a political party's ability to establish its own rules and procedures. The Commission specifically recommended that there be spending limits, financial disclosure, political tax credits, and financial agents to keep records and file disclosure reports for leadership contestants.

The selection of a leader for a political party is very significant considering the importance of a leader in the electoral success of a political party and a leader's impact on public policy. Campaign finance legislation in Alberta does not currently extend to leadership selection and there are no legislative requirements for leadership contestants. The selection of a leader is and should remain primarily an internal party matter, however, there is merit in having basic legislative requirements for leadership contestants as they relate to public disclosure.

Recommendations

Relevant Section: 2

a. Delete reference to leadership campaigns and conventions in the exclusions listed in section 2.

b. Minimal regulation of leadership contests should include appointing a financial officer and filing financial disclosure reports with the Chief Electoral Officer for leadership contestants.

2008 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION ACT (THE ACT)—SUBSTANTIVE

1. "Anywhere Voting" in the returning office and at advance polls

Background

Currently, the Act provides 3 basic voting options: a single day for general voting, 3 days of advance voting and special ballot voting anytime during the election period. On general voting day, the law requires that electors vote at a designated polling station within the electoral division in which they reside. During advance voting, electors who are eligible for this voting option are similarly required to attend an advance polling station within their electoral division. In urban electoral divisions this is usually the returning office, whereas in rural electoral divisions there can be multiple advance polling stations. Once again, in the case of special ballot voting, an application must be made to the returning office that is located within one's home electoral division and the completed special ballot must be returned to the same returning office before the close of polls on general voting day in order to be counted.

The rationale for restricting voting to an elector's home electoral division has been administrative ease, efficiency and control over the voting process. A list of electors for each electoral division is prepared and managed by the Returning Officer. The Returning Officer can expect to deal only with electors within their electoral division and this makes the administrative processes more manageable for the Returning Officer and his or her staff.

The Returning Officer and most other election officers must be resident electors within the electoral division where they are appointed to work. They determine the eligibility of electors, create or update the List of Electors for the electoral division, decide upon the polling place locations, determine who votes at which polling station based on where they live, and they can challenge a person's right to vote based upon, among other things, where they live. Historically, it was quite likely that an elector would be greeted by one of their neighbours when they went to vote – someone who could distinguish between those who lived in the neighbourhood and those who did not. This offered some element of control. Along with other controls such as a voters list and the requirement for those not on the list to show identification, it created a powerful deterrent to those who may attempt to vote in an electoral division in which they are not eligible to vote and to those who might otherwise be inclined to attempt to vote more than once. With the high mobility in the province, this personal knowledge of community residents may not be as commonplace as it once was.

The need for controls over the voting process will always exist. These controls give the public confidence in the integrity of the democratic system and afford legitimacy to election results. However, it is possible to change the form that these controls take on. With computerization of the Lists of Electors, it is technically possible to permit electors to vote anywhere in the province they happen to be at a given time with little risk to the integrity of the voting process. Electors who choose to vote outside their home electoral division would have to produce identification showing the address where they are ordinarily resident. When electors receive a ballot they could be marked on the computerized voters list as having voted. This would mitigate any attempt at multiple voting in a similar way to the current procedure of manually crossing names off the list of electors.

There are cost and many other logistical factors that would make such a change impractical at 7,000 regular polls on general voting day. However, a computerized data base containing the entire List of Electors for the province can be made available within each returning office to permit electors to vote at any returning office regardless of where they are ordinarily resident. For example, a student ordinarily resident in Ponoka attending school in Calgary could vote at any returning office in Calgary for a candidate running in the electoral division of Lacombe-Ponoka. A welder ordinarily resident in Edmonton-Rutherford working in High Prairie could vote for an Edmonton-Rutherford candidate in the returning office in High Prairie. Currently, the only 2 voting options available to the student and the worker in the above examples would be for them to either travel to their home electoral division during a day of advance or regular voting or to apply for a Special Ballot from the Returning Officer in their home electoral division. The travel option is often not practical unless it happens to coincide with a visit home. The Special Ballot option, while practical, is often left too late by the voter to permit timely delivery of a Special Ballot package and return of the completed ballot.

With the increased mobility of the population within the province for business, education and leisure, it is time to adapt the traditional voting system to the needs of the voter. Such a change would also allow Elections Alberta to set up advance "super polls" in shopping malls, at airports, in work camps and on college campuses where we typically find large numbers of voters who are ordinarily resident in different electoral divisions. According to the existing voting rules, it has not been advisable to set up polling stations in such locations precisely because electors in those areas are likely to be from different electoral divisions.

The votes cast by electors outside their electoral divisions would need to be redistributed by Elections Alberta to the electors' home electoral divisions for counting. It would not be possible for these votes to be physically received by the home electoral divisions in time for counting by the close of polls on general voting day. Therefore, they would need to be counted a day or two later and added in to the official count.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 43, 52(1), 86(1), 95(1), 98, 99, 104, 113, 116, 118, 119, 137.

a. Permit electors to vote in any electoral division within the province during the days of advance voting and by Special Ballot, at any returning office, throughout the election period.

b. Permit the establishment of additional advance voting stations in high traffic areas and places where large numbers of electors are located such as large shopping malls, airports, work camps, and college campuses.

2. Extending the hours of voting

Background

The Act currently prescribes the hours of voting for advance and general voting days to be from 9 a.m. to 8 p.m. This provides 11 continuous hours throughout these days for electors to vote. The Act also requires that election officers arrive at their designated polling station 30 minutes prior to the opening of the poll to permit candidates and scrutineers to examine election documents and materials. At the close of polls, the unofficial vote counting begins. It typically takes an additional hour to complete all of the required paper work and relay the results to the returning office. This makes for a 12 ½ hour day for election officers.

The hours of voting are not standardized across Canadian jurisdictions. Most jurisdictions have 11 hours of continuous voting, like Alberta, and some have 12. Prince Edward Island, which has consistently delivered the highest voter turnouts in the country, has only 10 hours of voting. In Prince Edward Island, the polls are open from 9 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Extending the hours of voting in Alberta provincial elections is unlikely to have a significant impact on voter participation, however, it would be convenient for some voters to have an additional hour to vote in the morning. The heaviest volume of voters attending the polls will still be between the hours of 5 p.m. and 7 p.m.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 88(1)

a. Extend the hours of voting for advance and regular polls by one hour by opening the polls at 8 a.m.

3. Additional days of advance voting

Background

The Act currently prescribes 3 days of advance voting on the Thursday, Friday, and Saturday of the week preceding general voting day. In electoral divisions that are primarily urban, there is typically one advance poll held in the returning office. In rural electoral divisions, there are multiple advance polls set up in different locations throughout the electoral division to accommodate the distances voters must travel. Turnout at advance polls has been increasing over time and, in the 2008 general election, several urban electoral divisions needed to establish additional advance polls to accommodate voters. Some campaigns are also becoming very active in organizing their supporters to vote at advance voting stations. With the adoption of an earlier recommendation to remove the eligibility criteria associated with advance voting, it can be expected that the option of voting in advance of general voting day will increase in the future. Also, permitting electors to vote at any advance polling station is expected to increase the use of the advance voting option.

Increasing the number of days of advance voting will have an impact on the returning officers' ability to have printed ballots available for use at the advance polls. Depending on the day of the week an election is called, there is currently anywhere between 4 and 9 days after the close of nominations to have the ballots printed and distributed to the advance polls. Even with the most generous printing and distribution period of 9 days, it is sometimes difficult to get the ballots distributed to advance polls in rural electoral divisions. Each day of advance poll voting that is added within the current election calendar will reduce the time available for printing and distributing ballots. For example, 3 additional days of advance voting added to the week preceding general voting day, would reduce the time available for printing and distribution of the ballots to between 1 and 6 days. It would clearly not be possible to supply advance polls with pre-printed ballots within such a reduced time frame. Two possible solutions to this timing issue would be to extend the election period by the number of additional days of advance poll voting and the other would be to authorize the use of special (blank) ballots at the advance polls. If the recommendation to permit voting at any advance poll is accepted, electors ordinarily resident outside the division in which they are voting would need to vote by special ballot because it would not be possible to supply every returning office and advance voting location with pre-printed ballots for every electoral division.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 39, 98

a. Increase the number of days of advance voting by 3 days to permit voting Monday to Saturday of the week preceding general voting day.

b. Extend the length of the election period by 3 days following the close of nominations.

4. Voter identification

Background

The Act does not require electors to provide identification to election officers in order to vote if their name appears on the List of Electors for their electoral division. An elector who attends a regular or advance poll and whose name is not on the List of Electors is required by law to produce identification in order to vote. Voters who apply for Special Ballots are not required to provide identification whether or not their name appears on the List of Electors. Electors required to provide identification must show two pieces consisting of an Alberta driver's licence, an Alberta health insurance card, a senior citizen's identification card, or any other piece of identification acceptable to the election officer. If neither piece of identification provided is one of the specific forms named above, then any 2 pieces of identification acceptable to the election officer may be provided. In addition, all electors whose names do not appear on the List must take and sign a prescribed oath stating the elector is qualified and ordinarily resident in that polling subdivision. In circumstances where identification is required, electors are not required to provide identification that establishes citizenship, age, address or length of residence and there is no need for the identification to contain a photograph.

There are different views on the issue of identification required to vote. We heard these views from electors and political campaigns during the 2008 general election. Some believe that there should be no need to produce identification since there are many individuals who may not possess the necessary identification documents to qualify. These individuals are often those who are already marginalized by society and the requirement for satisfactory identification would further disenfranchise them. Seniors and other long-time citizens and residents also expressed annoyance with having to provide identification.

Others believe that all electors should be required to produce identification to establish their eligibility to vote. This latter view was expressed by some electors but came primarily from political campaigns. Strictly speaking, it would be very difficult to establish eligibility through identification at the polling station, since very few people in our society are in the habit of carrying with them proof of citizenship. Length of residence in the province would also be difficult to prove through identification documents.

The Act tries to strike a balance between these opposing points of view. Generally speaking, electors whose names are on the List of Electors were, at one time or another, either enumerated at their place of residence or required to provide identification at the polling station. The Act accords to voters who are enumerated, the trust that they are who they say they are, that they reside where they answer the door, and that they are otherwise eligible to be an elector. The same holds true for the information provided about other eligible electors residing at the same address. On the other hand, there is the implicit assumption in the Act that individuals who have not been enumerated and whose names do not appear on the List of Electors require greater scrutiny as to their eligibility to vote – hence the need to provide identification and to swear an oath of elector eligibility. It is important to reiterate, that the minimal identification requirements in the Act do nothing to establish one's eligibility to be an elector. We are relying upon the declared word of the elector as to their eligibility.

During provincial elections, the issue becomes further complicated by the different rules applied during federal and local elections. For example, the City of Edmonton in the most recent municipal election introduced the requirement for photo identification of all voters. Some local authorities do not require any identification. Also, the identification requirements for federal elections are very different than for provincial elections. The inconsistency in these basic rules causes confusion on the part of voters, scrutineers and election officers who often work in provincial, federal and municipal elections.

a. A person who is required to establish his or her identity should be required to do so by providing one official document issued by a federal, provincial or municipal government that contains the person's name and photograph or at least 2 documents that provide evidence of the person's identity satisfactory to the election officer.

b. If none of the documents provided to establish a person's identity contains a current address, the person must make a signed declaration as to his or her current address.

5. Rules of residence

Background

For the purpose of determining where an elector resides and, hence, where they are entitled to vote, the Act uses the term "ordinary residence". Ordinary residence is determined according to the following rules:

a. a person can have only one place of ordinary residence;

b. a person's ordinary residence is the place where the person lives and sleeps and to which, when the person is absent from it, the person intends to return;

c. a student who
   i. is in attendance at an educational institution within or outside Alberta,
   ii. temporarily rents accommodation for the purpose of attending an educational institution, and
   iii. has family members who are ordinarily resident in Alberta and with whom the student ordinarily resides when not in attendance at an educational institution is deemed to reside with those family members;

d. when a person leaves Alberta with the intention of becoming ordinarily resident outside Alberta, the person's ordinary residence in Alberta ceases.

Application of the rules of ordinary residence causes confusion for a good number of electors and election officers, but particularly for students, workers who reside in camps, and persons with summer residences. For example, students will often leave home to attend school in large urban centres within and outside Alberta, sometimes for several years. The intent of the student to return to their family home when their studies are complete is not always clear, or could change while they are away. Also, there is a large contingent of workers in Alberta who live in work camps while they are employed. They may or may not have other residences to which they intend to return when they leave the work camp accommodations. Many of these workers spend more of their time living at the work camps than they do at other residences. Still others have "summer" residences where they can spend roughly equal amounts of time. Some electors in these situations feel they should be entitled to vote wherever they choose.

Following the 2007 civic elections, the County of St. Paul applied to the Court of Queen's Bench for an order determining whether the election in its Division 4 was substantially conducted in accordance with the requirements of the Local Authorities Election Act. At issue was the interpretation of the Act's rules of residency. In this case, Madam Justice Bielby ruled that voters with two residences could vote in the municipality where the home to which they feel "the greatest sense of personal attachment" is located. While the judge pointed out that this did not mean that an elector with two residences was free to simply vote where they chose, the task of proving otherwise would be considerable.

While there will always be unique circumstances, the rules of residence must be made clearer for the sake of the elector and election officers who have a duty to determine an elector's eligibility to vote in a particular electoral division.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 1(2)

a. If an Alberta resident temporarily resides in a place in Alberta to allow him or her to attend an educational institution for 6 months or longer or to pursue his or her ordinary occupation in a job that is expected to last for 6 months or longer, that temporary residence should be deemed to be his or her residence from the date the person begins to reside there.

6. Persons with no fixed address

Background

From time to time election officers are called upon to assist voters with no fixed address to determine their ordinary residence for purposes of voting. This situation applies to the homeless and would likely assist in determining the residency of some inmates prior to their imprisonment. The guidance given to election officers has been to deem ordinary residence for persons in such circumstances to be the shelter, hostel or similar facility most commonly frequented.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: No reference in the Act

a. A person who does not have an ordinary residence should be deemed to reside at the shelter, hostel or similar facility that most frequently provides food, lodging or other social services to the person.

7. Nomination deposits

Background

Candidates must file nomination papers with the returning officer in the electoral division in which they intend to run. Among other requirements, a nomination paper is not valid unless it is accompanied with a deposit of $500. Alberta is not unique in requiring a deposit before a candidate can seek election. Only Manitoba and Quebec do not require deposits. However, at $500, Alberta's nomination deposit is the highest. Half of the nomination deposit is refunded to the candidate's campaign if the candidate is elected or if they receive at least half as many votes as the winning candidate. The other half of the nomination deposit is refunded if the candidate's campaign financial statement is filed on time.

Nomination deposits have been put in place to serve several purposes. Ostensibly they deter the proliferation of frivolous candidates from entering the race, which could impair the ability of serious candidates from communicating with voters and, thus, undermine the electoral process. They were designed to ensure that a candidate was committed to the electoral process. Also, they provide a financial inducement for candidates to file their financial statement on time.

In Figueroa v. Attorney General of Canada (1999), the judge struck down as contrary to section 3 of the Charter federal legislation that required a candidate for election to Parliament to pay a $500 deposit that was refundable if the candidate received 15% of the vote. Ontario's election law requiring a $200 deposit which is refundable for candidates who receive at least 10% of the vote, was successfully challenged on Charter grounds earlier this year in de Jong v. Ontario (Attorney General), 2007. In that case, the Ontario Superior Court Justice stated that the deposit interfered with a citizen's capacity to play a meaningful role in the electoral process and that the effect of deposits is that “those having access to the most financial resources may be able to monopolize the election discourse.”

Whether or not nomination deposits serve the purpose of restricting candidacy to only serious contenders is subject to debate. It could well be argued that a truly serious candidate who expects to lose his or her deposit could be deterred by the financial threshold for participation and that $250 is hardly a financial deterrent for a truly determined frivolous candidate. It should be noted that, similar to all other provinces, Alberta has a requirement for candidates to obtain the signatures of electors who endorse their candidacy. This prerequisite of public endorsement for a nomination may be sufficient to restrict participation to serious candidates.

There may be less disagreement on the connection between timely filing of financial returns and the deposit refund for doing so. This portion of the deposit is designed to ensure compliance with financial reporting requirements. The $250 loss for failing to file a financial statement is not an insignificant amount to some candidates. However, all candidates have an opportunity to receive the refund by complying with the law. This is not to say that the refundable deposit is the only motivation for timely filing. Most candidates have a strong desire to play by the election rules requiring full disclosure of their election financial activities. Nevertheless, following the 2008 election there were 35 registered candidates who failed to file their financial return by the reporting deadline. There are legal sanctions for failure to file but they are not entirely effective in encouraging compliance with filing deadlines.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 61(1), 62 of the Election Act;
42, 43 and 44 of the EFCD Act

a. If challenged in court, the portion of the nomination deposit that is contingent upon the election outcome would likely be found to violate Charter rights and should be eliminated.

b. An administrative penalty should be assessed for each day a candidate's election return is filed after the filing deadline.

c. An administrative penalty should be assessed for each day a registered party's election return and annual return are filed after the filing deadline.

8. Secrecy

Background

The Act requires all persons permitted to remain in a polling place during polling hours to take a prescribed oath of secrecy before performing their duties and to aid in maintaining the secrecy of voting. Suspected contraventions of the law governing secrecy are required to be reported to the Chief Electoral Officer. The duty of the Chief Electoral Officer to notify the Minister of Justice and Attorney General of suspected secrecy contraventions is superfluous. No other suspected contravention of election law is required to be reported to the Minister of Justice and Attorney General in this fashion. Section 166 of the Act already stipulates the offence for violating the law governing secrecy of voting and section 177(1) outlines the applicable penalty for this offence. As a matter of course, all suspected contraventions of the Act are investigated by the Chief Electoral Officer and, where a breach has been found, they are referred to Alberta Justice for prosecution. The Minister of Justice and Attorney General cannot institute a prosecution under the Act without the consent of the Chief Electoral Officer.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 93(3)

a. Repeal the provision requiring the Chief Electoral Officer to notify the Minister of Justice and Attorney General of a suspected contravention of the law governing secrecy of voting.

9. Election void if candidate is found guilty of corrupt practice

Background

The Act outlines a specific class of offences called corrupt practices. For the most part they are considered to be the more serious violations of the Act with some of the stiffest penalties. A corrupt practice committed by a candidate or an official agent of a candidate carries additional penalties. When a candidate is found guilty of a corrupt practice and, under certain conditions, when an official agent is found guilty of a corrupt practice, the election is considered void. This would appear to be appropriate if it was the elected candidate or his or her official agent that committed the corrupt practice. The Act, however, merely refers to a "candidate" and an "official agent". It does not seem appropriate for an elected candidate to be automatically deprived of victory because an unsuccessful candidate has breached the law.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 178(1), 179(1)

a. An election should be declared void if it is the elected candidate or his or her official agent that is found guilty of a corrupt practice.

b. In the case of a corrupt practice by a candidate who was not elected or official agent of a candidate who was not elected, the judge should have the discretion to declare the election void if the result was unfair or the integrity of the electoral process was undermined because of the corrupt practice.

10. Safeguarding the Lists of Electors

Background

The Act outlines who may have access to the Lists of Electors and restricts how this information may be used. The Act also imposes one of the stiffest financial penalties for contravention of these restrictions. The penalty is a fine of not more than $100,000 or imprisonment for a term of not more than one year or both. There is currently no method of monitoring or controlling the misuse of the voters lists. In other Canadian jurisdictions, the restricted use of this information is monitored by the Chief Electoral Officer by selectively adding control entries to the lists. By "salting" the lists, the Chief Electoral Officer would have the ability to trace misused lists to the offender. For example, if non election-related correspondence or advertising addressed to these fictitious entries arrives at the designated address, then it may constitute grounds for an investigation into a possible election offence.

a. Include authority for the addition of control entries to the Lists of Electors in order to safeguard their use.

11. Inspection of poll books

Background

Candidates or their official agents may request copies of Poll Books for their own electoral divisions during a 30 day period following an election. Technically speaking, poll books cannot be ordered until the names of the candidates declared elected are published in the Alberta Gazette. Elections Alberta is not in control of the timing of this publication, but it usually takes as many as 6 weeks following the election for results to be published. Practically speaking, Elections Alberta receives requests for poll books immediately following the election but cannot begin to supply them until the 30 day period begins. For expediency and to reduce the cost of producing these poll books, Elections Alberta waits until all requests are received before copying the poll books so that multiple copies of books for a particular electoral division can be made at the same time. Poll book requests could be supplied faster if there was a two week window to request the books.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 152(1)

a. Reduce the period for requesting poll books from 30 days to 15.
b. The cross-reference in section 152(4) is incorrect and should refer to (3) not (2).

12. Testing new technologies and alternative methods

Background

The Act is very prescriptive in terms of the approved methods, procedures and rules for conducting elections. This is as it should be so that the rules are clear to election officers, understood by voters and easily scrutinized by the political participants. However, from time to time, new methods, procedures or technologies are developed or introduced in other jurisdictions which could serve to improve efficiency, lower cost or improve service to the voter. It would be desirable to have specific authority to be able to test such innovations during by-elections where small scale application can be properly monitored and controlled.

Recommendations Relevant Section: No reference in the Act

a. At a by-election, permit the Chief Electoral Officer to direct the use of new technologies, voting equipment or alternative voting methods that are different from what the Act requires.

b. Require the Chief Electoral Officer to describe the new technologies, voting equipment or alternative voting methods in detail and refer to the provisions of the Act that will be implemented differently or will not be complied with.
c. Require the Chief Electoral Officer to provide notification of procedural amendments to all registered political parties.

13. Use of schools as voting places

Background

According to the Act, it is the responsibility of the Returning Officer to provide polling places at which polling stations will be located. Polling places are to be conveniently located for the voter and handicapped accessible, where practicable. The Act states that a Returning Officer may utilize as a polling place any public building or any school that is the property of any school district or school division if the building or school is suitable for the purpose. Schools are ideal locations as polling places. With the exception of very new areas, most communities have one or more schools that are conveniently located for the majority of residents. Most residents know where a particular school is situated in their community, the gymnasiums can accommodate several polls, they usually have sufficient parking, and they typically have the necessary chairs and tables available to equip a polling place. There would seem to be clear authority for a Returning Officer to locate polling stations in schools. Unfortunately, school boards are increasingly refusing to rent space in their schools for election day. They most often cite conflicts with school programming, the administrative inconvenience of contacting schools, increased janitorial costs, security concerns with the public entering the schools while their students are attending classes, and safety concerns related to increased vehicular traffic. They are also increasingly reluctant to let the Returning Officers use or rent tables and chairs forcing officials to rent from costly commercial providers and having furniture delivered to the schools. In the 2008 general election, some school boards would not approve the use of any schools until they had received the requests from every Returning Officer. This makes it very difficult to advertise the location of polling places on a timely basis, particularly if the requests are subsequently refused.

An earlier recommendation regarding fixed election dates stated, "A fixed election date would allow more time for advance planning by the school boards and enable them to make arrangements they felt were necessary for student safety, possibly including designating the date as a non-instructional day."

Recommendations Relevant Section: 52(4)

a. Strengthen the existing provision regarding the use of schools as polling places to say that if requested by a Returning Officer, space and furniture in a school or public building must be made available to operate a polling station.

b. When a polling station is located in a school, no classes or other school activities (other than educational visits by students currently authorized under section 92(1.1)) may take place in the space occupied by the polling station.

c. When a polling station is located in a school, the principal of the school may order that no classes or other school activities may take place in the entire school, or any part of the school the principal specifies.

14. Employment leave for Returning Officers

Background

If an earlier recommendation concerning merit-based, open competitions for filling the Returning Officer and Election Clerk positions is adopted, it would be desirable to require employers to grant a leave without pay to an employee who has been appointed to the position of Returning Officer or Election Clerk. Considering the importance of these positions to ensuring fair and professionally-run elections, and the short-term nature of the appointment, such a provision would open the competitions to otherwise employed persons. Without such a provision the competition for these positions is effectively limited to those who are without employment.

Recommendation Relevant Section: No reference in the Act

a. Require a period of leave without pay to be granted by employers for persons appointed to the position of Returning Officer or Election Clerk.

15. Candidate contributions to candidate's campaign

Background

According to section 209 of the Act, a candidate can "lawfully" contribute to his or her own campaign from personal funds an amount up to the contribution limit prescribed for a contributor. However, the section also explicitly contemplates excess contributions by a candidate, which it requires to be reimbursed from the candidate's campaign account. These provisions are ambiguous as they leave in question the lawfulness of the excess contributions if they are reimbursed from the campaign account.

A candidate may over-contribute to his or her campaign, and then find the campaign fund is too small to reimburse the excess amount. A candidate in over-contributing may even have an expectation that the campaign account will be too small to reimburse the excess amount. The ambiguity in this section essentially allows candidates the opportunity to exceed the limits in section 17(1)(b)(ii) of the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act and claim that they anticipated being reimbursed from the campaign account, but that the campaign account came up short.

a. Clarify that any amount contributed by a candidate over that allowed under section 17(b)(ii) of the EFCD Act is an unlawful excess contribution and subject to an administrative penalty under section 51 regardless of whether the amount of the excess contribution is repaid from the campaign account.

b. Remove section 209 from the Election Act and include it in the *EFCD Act.

16. Protection of elector information—process for swearing in at the polls

Background

An eligible elector whose name is not on the List of Electors may have his or her name added during the advance polls or on election day, after completing an Oath of Elector. Completion of the Oath requires the production of two pieces of identification, administration of the Oath by the election officer, and inclusion of signatures by the elector and the election officer. In addition, the election officer must inquire and record whether the elector intends to swear or affirm the Oath.

The process would be streamlined and expedited by the elector making a declaration rather than completing an Oath (as is done to obtain a ballot at an advance poll). While a declaration has the same force and effect, it does not demand the same process of inquiry and response by the election officer and elector, respectively.

Expediting the process would provide better service to all electors, while maintaining the integrity of the process. In addition, eliminating the need to swear or affirm an oath, and to have this information retained in the Poll Book for examination by and distribution to candidates and official agents, would be less intrusive to electors and more respectful of their right to privacy.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 95, 99

a. Replace the Oath of Elector with a declaration, maintaining the overall content. This will effectively remove the requirement for the determination and retention of whether the Oath was sworn or affirmed.

17. Protection of elector information—Lists of Electors

Background

Currently, the Chief Electoral Officer is authorized to provide a replacement copy of the List of Electors to Members of the Legislative Assembly, and registered political parties, upon request. The Member or party that requests a copy may be required to pay an amount for replacement of the data. There is no requirement for Members or parties to provide any kind of accounting of what happened to the original copy of the List or explanation as to why a replacement copy is required.

Given the confidentiality appropriately accorded to elector data, Members and parties should provide specifics to the Chief Electoral Officer concerning the whereabouts of the previous List, specifics regarding loss or destruction and efforts made to retrieve the elector data, if it is not readily available.

That would provide the Chief Electoral Officer with the necessary information to determine whether investigative or recovery efforts are appropriate.

In addition, application of an administrative penalty for loss of confidential elector data would encourage Members and parties to exercise the utmost caution in the management of the data entrusted to them. Commitment to security of elector data evidenced by strict statutory consequences for lost or misplaced data would serve to reinforce the importance of safeguarding the confidential information contained on Lists of Electors.

Recommendations

Relevant Section: 18

a. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to ascertain, through inquiry, the reasons for a request for a copy of a List of Electors.
b. Require members and parties to fully disclose all details, in writing, with respect to the reasons for requesting a copy of the List of Electors.
c. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to apply an administrative penalty of up to $5,000 for the loss of confidential elector information.

18. Protection of elector information—scrutineers' access

Background

Current provisions in the Act authorize scrutineers to represent candidates and to observe election procedures on a candidate's behalf. Meaningful observation of election procedures includes access to election documentation which is essential to ensure fairness and transparency within the voting process.

There is no specific direction regarding scrutineers' access rights and this ambiguity has led to confrontational exchanges between scrutineers and election officers. Clarity surrounding the role and rights of scrutineers would remedy this situation and remove the need for ad hoc resolution on election days, when time is scarce, other priorities exist and emotions are high. Specific legislative authority would be particularly useful within this context, given the large number of scrutineers, all of whom are volunteers who receive little or no training in their responsibilities and who often have no experience to draw upon.

Specific role definition would ensure that scrutineers and election officers cooperate in serving the electorate through the performance of their discreet but complementary roles.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 79

- a. Scrutineers' access to election documentation should be limited to a time that is convenient for election officers.
- b. Specify that election documentation may be examined, but may not be removed from the polling station or registration officer's station, nor mechanically reproduced in any way.
- c. Specify that scrutineers may communicate with the election officers and not directly with electors.
- d. Require scrutineers to discuss perceived irregularities with their candidate or official agent, to allow for resolution between one of those individuals and the Returning Officer. This will allow individuals with a broader understanding of election legislation to resolve perceptions of irregularities.
- e. Require scrutineers to contact the Returning Officer if he or she is unable to discuss the perceived irregularity with the candidate or official agent.

19. Publication of polling place information

Background

Currently, Returning Officers publish maps of the electoral division, along with polling place locations, on two separate occasions. Publication of the first advertisement within the tight time constraints of having to advertise the hours, date and place fixed for nominations has, historically, resulted in subsequent changes due to the fact that many locations will not make the necessary commitments before the publication deadline. Lessors have, in past, reneged on the verbal commitments that are most often obtained in order to meet newspaper publication deadlines, resulting in advertising errors.

Revisions to polling place information result in a significant expense to republish information, as required by legislation. It also places an additional requirement on Returning Officers, who are expected to direct electors from the initially advertised polling place to the new location. In addition, where-to-vote cards identifying the correct polling place would contain conflicting information, adding to the confusion.

Most importantly, electors may disregard subsequent advertisements and rely on information provided in the first advertisement. Some may not learn of the revision until election day and may be disenfranchised if their attendance at the location that was originally advertised does not permit the necessary time to travel to the correct location.

Publication of one set of maps and polling place locations, in the seven days prior to polling day, would ensure adequate time to confirm lease arrangements in writing prior to advertising. Advertisements would still appear in newspapers before the opening of the advance polls.

As in recent elections, polling place locations would continue to be made available via Elections Alberta's call centre and website earlier in the election period. Accuracy of information provided through these media is much easier to ensure, given internal control over timelines and data integrity.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 55, 70

a. Remove the requirement for publication of maps and polling place locations from the proclamation advertisement in the newspaper.

20. Returning Officer availability

Background

In the past, Returning Officers have vacated their offices within a few days or a week after polling day. However, there are several important functions performed by Returning Officers in the weeks following the election which would benefit from their continued occupation of office space. Returning Officers are required to conduct an official count of the votes, update the Register of Electors, and transmit election documents to the Chief Electoral Officer within ten days following the official count. They are required to pack up and return their election materials to Elections Alberta and to prepare a report on how the election was administered in their electoral division. There is no requirement for Returning Officers to be accessible in their offices following the official count. Leasing arrangements are typically such that returning office space is rented for a two-month period. Therefore, there would be no additional lease costs if the Returning Officer was to remain in the office for a longer period.

After an election, candidates, official agents and the public are left without a local presence to respond to their questions and to provide assistance or information, if needed.

A requirement for Returning Officers to maintain regular office hours for the two weeks following the election would allow ample time for the professional completion of their responsibilities to the Chief Electoral Officer, the candidates, and the public in their respective electoral divisions. The expanded window of opportunity would also facilitate their immediate review and identification of outstanding election issues for timely review and action by the Chief Electoral Officer.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 9, 138, 141, 142

a. Specify that Returning Officers must maintain regular office hours and be available for two weeks post-polling day.

2008 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION ACT (THE ACT)—HOUSEKEEPING

21. Time for voting

Background

All employees who are qualified electors are entitled to 3 consecutive hours while the polls are open on polling day for the purpose of casting their vote. This provision does not apply to employees engaged in the operation of dispatching railway trains or scheduled commercial aircraft and to whom the 3 consecutive hours cannot be allowed without interference with the operation or dispatching of the trains or aircraft. It would appear that this provision is quite limited in singling out commercial aircraft and train transportation. If there is a need to exempt employers based upon the type of the work performed by certain employees, it would be more appropriate to refer to the urgent and critical nature of the employment that would make it inadvisable for leave to be granted, rather than to list specific positions.

Election officers are encouraged to vote at the advance poll, but there is no requirement for them to do so. It would not be possible to provide 3 consecutive hours of leave to election officers for the purpose of voting without seriously disrupting the whole voting process.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 132

a. Extend the exemption for employers from having to provide time off for voting to employees who provide emergency or essential services and to election officers.

22. Reference to financial statement filing

Background

Section 62(2.1) of the Act refers to the filing of the election financial statement by the candidate. Section 43(2) of the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act places the responsibility for filing a candidate's election financial statement with the candidate's chief financial officer. The former provision should be changed to clarify that it is the chief financial officer of the registered candidate that files the election financial statement.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 62(2.1) of the Election Act; 43(2) of the EFCD Act.

a. Direct the chief financial officer of the registered candidate, rather than the candidate, to file the election financial statement.

23. Candidate seals

Background

At the conclusion of each day of advance voting and at the conclusion of the unofficial count of ballots at the voting station on election night, the deputy returning officer is required to seal the ballot box. The Act also permits the ballot box to be sealed by any candidate, official agent or scrutineer so desiring. In practical terms, this does not happen. Candidates' campaigns do not have seals to prevent the ballot box from being opened nor do they have seals to cover the slot in the ballot box. Specially numbered lock tags and controlled paper seals are provided to the election officers for this purpose. It is not necessary, nor advisable, to permit candidates' campaigns to seal ballot boxes without specifying or providing the materials to be used for this purpose in case election officers are later unable to break those seals to perform their official duties in a timely fashion.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 98(6)(b), 112

a. Delete reference to candidates, official agents and scrutineers sealing the ballot box.

b. Permit candidates, official agents or scrutineers to sign across the flap of all sealed envelopes into which ballots have been placed before being deposited into the ballot box.

24. Inspection of election documents

Background

The Act permits the inspection of election documents, with the exception of ballots, by candidates and official agents within a 30-day period following the publication of election results in the Alberta Gazette. While the Act does not specify where these documents may be inspected, they are securely stored at the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer. Depending on the number of requests received, there is the potential for considerable public expense to be incurred in having to transport these documents to various other locations and to retain staff to supervise their inspection. It is suggested that the Act specify the Elections Alberta office as the location where election documents may be inspected. There is no additional public expense involved in having election documents inspected at this location. This is consistent with the location specified in the EFCD Act for the public inspection of financial documents.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 152(1)

a. Specify that election documents available for inspection may be inspected at the office of the Chief Electoral Officer.

25. Election terminology

Background

Some of the more important and frequently used terminology in the Act and the EFCD Act is antiquated and should be updated. The following is a list of the current terminology used in the legislation and the proposed terms:

Recommendations Relevant Sections: Various sections of the Election Act and the EFCD Act.

Current Term	Proposed Term
Advance Poll	Advance Voting Advance Voting station Advance Voting place
Deputy Returning Officer	Voting Officer
Election Clerk	Assistant Returning Officer
Elector	Voter
List of Electors	Voters List
Mobile Poll	Mobile Voting Mobile Voting station Mobile Voting place
Poll Book	Voting Book
Poll Clerk	Voting Clerk
Polling Day	Voting Day
Polling Place	Voting Place
Polling Station	Voting Station
Polling Subdivision	Voting Area
Supervising Deputy Returning Officer	Senior Voting Officer

26. Candidate to run in only one electoral division

Background

While it is quite likely that the Act intends to restrict a person to run as a candidate in only one electoral division during an election, this is not explicit.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 56, 57

a. Restrict a candidate from running in more than one electoral division in a general election or when more than one by-election is being held at the same time.

2008 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION FINANCES AND CONTRIBUTIONS DISCLOSURE (EFCD) ACT—SUBSTANTIVE

1. Definition of "contribution"

Background

The term "contribution" is currently defined to mean money or real or personal property that is provided to or for the benefit of a political entity without compensation. The definition does not include "services". However, in section 23 of the EFCD Act "goods and services" are considered to be contributions.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 1(e)

a. The term contribution should be defined to include "services, other than volunteer labour".

2. Auditing requirements for financial statements

Background

The EFCD Act requires audited financial statements, including nil returns, to be filed with the Chief Electoral Officer by registered political parties covering annual activities and the campaign period. Smaller political parties sometimes have minimal or no spending to report. The requirement for parties with nil or minimal spending to have to incur the expense of having their financial statements audited seems unnecessary. If there are concerns regarding a particular financial return, the Chief Electoral Officer has the authority to conduct an examination under the EFCD Act and, if necessary, can enter the premises of a political party, examine or make copies of books or documents, and compel political parties to produce information.

The term "audit" is currently not defined in the EFCD Act and, from time to time, Elections Alberta is challenged by political parties who want to have financial statements "audited" by accountants or bookkeepers who are not qualified auditors.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 5, 42, 43

a. Eliminate the requirement for an audit for political party annual or campaign period financial statements containing spending or fund raising below $500, unless otherwise directed by the Chief Electoral Officer.

b. Define the term "audited financial statement" as a financial statement which has been independently examined by a person authorized to perform such examinations under the Regulated Accounting Professions Act for the purpose of expressing an opinion as to whether financial information is presented fairly.

3. Reporting of candidate deficits and surpluses

Background

The chief financial officer of a registered candidate is required to file a financial statement within 4 months after polling day with the Chief Electoral Officer setting out the income and transfers and the amount of expenses in total, including expenses paid on behalf of the candidate by a registered party or a constituency association that relate to the campaign period. The EFCD Act refers to continuing use of funds held by a candidate at the end of a campaign period, but it should be made explicit that assets and liabilities of the candidate should be reported on the campaign period financial statement.

As noted above, the EFCD Act deals with situations where a candidate has surplus campaign funds, including contributions received for the purpose of the campaign. The EFCD Act requires that a candidate's surplus campaign funds be held in trust and section 12(2)(a) gives the trustee of the trust two options: (i) the trustee can deposit the funds in a financial institution, or (ii) the trustee can invest the funds in an authorized trustee investment. Until 2006, there was a schedule to the Trustee Act that defined "authorized trustee investments". That schedule was repealed in 2006 as the Trustee Act had moved away from a defined set of investments for trustees to a more flexible set of rules. Other statutes that referred to authorized trustee investments were amended but the EFCD Act was not. Candidates and their trustees are becoming confused about what constitutes an "authorized trustee investment".

Furthermore, section 12(1) stipulates clearly that surplus funds are to be expended for the candidate's candidacy at the next election. However, the section contains ambiguity in that it permits the trust funds to be transferred or paid, at the option of the candidate, to the registered party, the registered constituency association, or registered candidates of the registered party that proposed or supported the candidate's registration at the previous election. There is no mechanism for ever ensuring that these funds are, in fact, used for the candidate's benefit as required by the EFCD Act. Also, if the candidate does not run in the next election, he or she can transfer or pay the amount held in trust to the above entities or to the Crown if the funds cannot be transferred.

If surplus funds are to be expended for the candidate's candidacy at the next election, they should be held in trust by the Chief Electoral Officer and returned to the candidate with accumulated interest if the candidate contests the next election. If the candidate does not contest the next election, the funds should be paid to the candidate's supporting party or, in the case of an independent candidate, to the General Revenue Fund.

There is no reference in the EFCD Act to situations where candidates end up with a deficit at the end of their campaign. This raises a concern with how campaign deficits are eventually retired. Outstanding liabilities of candidates at the end of the campaign period must be paid, forgiven, or barred from payment as per section 210(1) of the Election Act. If the deficit is paid by the candidate or someone else, this amounts to a contribution to the candidate's campaign and is subject to contribution limits and other prohibitions. If an outstanding liability is forgiven, this amounts to an in-kind donation, again subject to contribution rules. If a claim for a debt is time-barred it should be deemed to be a contribution, as per an earlier recommendation. The point is that there is no mechanism for reporting on the elimination of deficits which means that all contributions to a candidate's campaign may not be reported and subsequently disclosed.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 12, 43(2)

a. Specifically reference the reporting of assets and liabilities of the candidate at the end of the campaign period within the election reporting requirements for candidates.

b. Include the name of each supplier of goods or services to whom the candidate owes payment, and the amount owing to each, in the reporting of candidate liabilities.

c. Require the Chief Electoral Officer to hold surplus funds of a candidate in trust.

d. Return surplus funds of a candidate to the candidate, with accumulated interest, if the candidate contests the next election.

e. Transmit surplus funds and accumulated interest of a candidate who does not contest the next election to the candidate's supporting party or, in the case of an independent candidate, to the General Revenue Fund.

f. Within 30 days after the end of the calendar year, require every candidate with a campaign deficit to file a return with the Chief Electoral Officer setting out:
   i) the amount of the campaign deficit that remains outstanding
   ii) the total amounts of contributions, transfers or other funds used to reduce or eliminate the campaign deficit; and
   iii) the total amounts of all contributions received from a single contributor, including the contributor's name and address and the date the contribution was made.

g. Repeal sections 12(2) to (5).

4. Borrowing

Background

Section 40(1) of the EFCD Act restricts registered party, constituency association and candidate borrowing to a financial institution (other than Alberta Treasury Branches). The Office of the Chief Electoral Officer has discovered a circumstance of a party incurring significant "accounts payable" to a single party supporter with no terms of repayment. In our view, this amounts to "borrowing" from a person that is not a financial institution. This exposes a potential loophole in the contribution limits and transparency provisions of the EFCD Act.

If a registered party, constituency association or candidate enters into a contract or other arrangement in relation to real property, personal property, or services where the contract or arrangement is at less than a reasonable commercial value or does not otherwise reflect reasonable commercial terms, they should be required to report such an arrangement to the Chief Electoral Officer. The report should include a copy of the contract or agreement, or provide the details of the arrangement. It should disclose the difference between the reasonable commercial value and the value at which the real property, personal property or service was provided. This difference must be recognized by the EFCD Act as a contribution and reported as such by the registered party, registered constituency association or registered candidate.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 23(5), 40

a. Contracts or other arrangements in relation to real property, personal property or services (other than volunteer labour) entered into by registered parties, registered constituency associations and registered candidates that are at less than reasonable commercial value, or that do not reflect reasonable commercial terms, must be reported in detail within 30 days to the Chief Electoral Officer.

b. The difference between the reasonable commercial value and the value at which the real property, personal property or service was provided must be recognized by the EFCD Act to be a contribution.

5. Administrative penalties

Background

There are 2 mechanisms for dealing with non-compliance with the EFCD Act:

a. prosecution under sections 45 to 50; and

b. in the case of 2 provisions of the EFCD Act, administrative penalties under section 51.

Prosecution is not an effective tool for ensuring compliance with the EFCD Act in all cases because it relies on the criminal justice system as its enforcement mechanism. Prosecutorial discretion has prevented a number of breaches of the EFCD Act from being dealt with through prosecution despite referrals and consents to prosecution which are required from the Chief Electoral Officer before violations of the EFCD Act can proceed to court.

However, the provisions in relation to administrative penalties are too narrow to assist in ensuring compliance with most sections of the EFCD Act. At a minimum, the powers of the Chief Electoral Officer under section 51 should be expanded to allow the Chief Electoral Officer the authority to impose penalties on a registered party, constituency association or registered candidate who receives an improper contribution (See recommendation 3.c. under the October 2006 Amendments to the Election Finances and Contributions Disclosure (EFCD) Act— Substantive).

The narrow scope of section 51 prevents the Chief Electoral Officer from enforcing compliance with other requirements and limits in the EFCD Act. The EFCD Act would provide a more effective regulatory regime if the Chief Electoral Officer was authorized to issue other sorts of orders (e.g. an order that money be repaid to the donor by the party where it is an excessive or prohibited contribution) and penalties (e.g. a daily fee for late filing of election and annual financial returns).

Ideally, a more fundamental restructuring of section 51 should take place. These sorts of regimes exist in securities legislation, professional legislation and environmental legislation.

Recommendations Relevant Sections: 45 to 53

a. Expand administrative penalties to cover any breach of the EFCD Act.

b. Authorize other forms of orders besides "penalties" including:
   i. reprimands
   ii. formal and public warnings
   iii. orders to come into compliance
   iv. fines and costs

6. Penalty amount imposed by Chief Electoral Officer

Background

When the Chief Electoral Officer is satisfied that a person, corporation, trade union or employee organization has made contributions in excess of an amount permitted under the EFCD Act, he may require payment of a penalty in the amount equivalent to the amount by which the contribution exceeded the permitted amount. Similarly, when the Chief Electoral Officer is satisfied that a prohibited corporation has made a contribution in contravention of section 16, he may require payment of a penalty equivalent to the amount of the contribution. The requirement does not allow for discretion to impose a lesser penalty where circumstances may warrant.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 51

a. Permit the Chief Electoral Officer to exercise discretion in the penalty amount imposed.

7. Accumulation of assets by new parties

Background

Under section 6(1) of the EFCD Act, no contributions can be accepted by a political party until it is registered. However, there is an anomaly in the EFCD Act in that sections 6(3) to 6(5) contemplate that a party will have assets before registration. For example, section 6(3) requires that a non-profit corporation or trust be established as a foundation for receiving and managing the assets held by the political party prior to filing an application for registration. Similarly, section 7 also contemplates that a party will have assets before it is registered.

On a practical level, there is no way that a non-profit corporation can be formed and have assets unless someone gives assets to the non-profit corporation. As soon as someone gives something to a non-profit corporation formed for the purposes of operating a political party (including office materials, etc.) it is a "contribution" as defined in section 1(1) of the EFCD Act. Therefore, the EFCD Act contemplates that a party will have assets, but there is really no practical way for the party to get any assets under the EFCD Act. Membership fees permitted under section 25 are unlikely to be of real assistance because the fee paid must not exceed $50 to be considered a non-contribution.

In order to permit contributions to new parties before registration, the non-profit corporation established for the purpose of becoming registered as a political party should apply to the Chief Electoral Officer to accept contributions, despite section 6(1). These contributions would be used solely for the purposes of obtaining registration. The Chief Electoral Officer can establish rules that specify the information that must be provided in an application. Approved applications could impose any conditions to ensure the integrity of the control over election finances and disclosure under the EFCD Act. Conditions could include: who may hold the contributions, bonding requirements, contribution source and amount limits, record keeping and reporting requirements, and refund requirements if registration does not occur. A contribution made under these provisions would be deemed to be a contribution by the donor to the party on the date the party becomes registered.

Recommendation Relevant Sections: 1(1)(e), 6, 7, 17, 18, 25, 40

a. Add provisions to permit contributions to new parties before they are registered for the sole purpose of becoming registered.

8. Candidate spending before the issuance of the Writ

Background

In the period before elections and before the issuance of the Writ, it is reasonable to expect that candidates may wish to lease campaign office space and order signs, etc. in anticipation of an election call. However, according to section 9(1) there is a very broad prohibition on candidates, and others acting on behalf of a candidate, from "using" any funds and accepting contributions before the candidate is registered with the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer. Conceptually, candidates who are representatives of a registered party can register in the pre-writ period under section 9(2). The current practice has been for their party or constituency association to enter into commitments that they can take over once the Writ is issued. The law is unclear as to whether or not this practice is permissible before the candidate is registered or before the Writ is issued.

By contrast, under section 9(2)(a)(iv), an independent candidate cannot register in the pre-writ period (unless he or she is an MLA) and, therefore, cannot "use" any funds, including their own funds, to secure space and order signs, etc.

The EFCD Act should clearly state whether or not acceptance of contributions and spending campaign funds is permitted by candidates prior to the issuance of the Writ. If such activity is permitted before the Writ, a new term such as "candidacy period" will need to be introduced to the EFCD Act for the purpose of candidate financial reporting.

If candidate spending and acceptance of contributions is permitted before the Writ, the same rules for registration should apply to independent candidates as to candidates nominated by a constituency association. With a fixed date for the election, a fixed date could also be set after which registration could take place for all candidates.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 9

a. Delete the words "after the date of the issue of a Writ of Election in a named electoral division" in section 9(2)(iv).
b. Include similar amendments in the Senatorial Selection Act.
c. Clarify whether acceptance of contributions and campaign spending are permitted prior to the issuance of the Writ.

9. Regulation of third parties

Background

One of the main purposes of campaign finance legislation is to regulate the amount of money that is spent by political entities in their efforts to get candidates elected. This is typically done by setting limits on the amount that can be spent on election campaigns and/or the amount that can be contributed to election campaigns. In Alberta, only contributions are subject to limitations – by source and amount. Another feature of campaign finance legislation is transparency – public disclosure of where the money used in elections comes from and how it is being spent.

The Royal Commission on Electoral Reform and Party Financing (1991), as a result of extensive hearings and research, proposed recommendations to restrict third party spending during a federal election. The Royal Commission concluded that unlimited third party spending is a threat to the effectiveness of campaign finance legislation. The Commission recommended that election expenses incurred independently from registered political parties and candidates not exceed $1,000; that there be no pooling of funds; and that the sponsor be identified on all advertisements and promotional material for such independent expenditures.

There have been several court challenges to third party restrictions beginning with the 1993 challenge of third party provisions in the Canada Elections Act by David Summerville of the National Citizens Coalition in the Alberta Court of Queen's Bench, and an appeal of that decision by the Attorney General in the Court of Appeal of Alberta in 1995 which was dismissed in 1996. Later the Supreme Court of Canada ruled in Libman v. Quebec (Attorney General) on the constitutionality of third party provisions in Quebec's Referendum law. In 2000, there was a challenge of BC's election advertising spending limits for third parties in the British Columbia Supreme Court involving Pacific Press v. British Columbia (Attorney General). Most recently in Harper v. Canada (Attorney General) the Canada Elections Act's third party provisions were challenged in the Alberta Court of Queen's bench and some components of the ruling were appealed in 2002.

The drafting of any third party regulations would need to pay particular attention to court rulings on this area of election law. Reasonable limits on third party expenditures during elections are in place in other Canadian jurisdictions and, depending on how they are structured, can withstand constitutional challenge. In Alberta where there are no campaign spending limits placed on political parties and candidates, it may be difficult to defend a decision to impose them on third parties. Nevertheless, in the interests of transparency, it would not seem unreasonable that third parties incurring election expenses above a certain threshold be required to register with the Chief Electoral Officer, be subject to contribution limitations, be required to identify themselves on advertising and promotional materials and be required to file a financial statement of their income and expenses.

Recommendations Relevant Section: No provisions exist

a. Require individuals and groups incurring election expenses independently from political parties and candidates (third parties) to register with the Chief Electoral Officer.

b. Apply source and amount contribution restrictions to third parties.

c. Require third parties to identify themselves on all advertising and promotional materials.

d. Require third parties to report their election spending to the Chief Electoral Officer.

2008 RECOMMENDATIONS FOR AMENDMENTS TO THE ELECTION FINANCES AND CONTRIBUTIONS DISCLOSURE (EFCD) ACT—HOUSEKEEPING

10. Disclosure of financial activity

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer is required to publish on Elections Alberta's website the financial statements filed by registered parties and candidates within 30 days of being approved. Records of contributions are required to be filed at the same time that other financial statements are filed. It should be made explicit that records of contributions over $375 are to be published on Elections Alberta's website along with other financial information.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: 4(1)(d)

a. Clarify that the Chief Electoral Officer shall publish records of contributions over $375 on Elections Alberta's website along with financial statement information.

11. Annual financial disclosure by party foundations

Background

Foundations are formed by political parties for the purpose of managing the assets held by the party prior to filing its application for registration. They are required to file a report of their expenditures annually with the Chief Electoral Officer. Foundations should also be required to report on their income for the reporting period and the value of assets held at the end of the reporting period.

Recommendation

Relevant Section: 6(6)

a. Section 6(6) of the EFCD Act should be expanded to require foundations to annually file a report with the Chief Electoral Officer which sets out the income, transfers and expenditures of the foundation and the balance of assets held at the beginning and end of the reporting period.

12. Price paid in excess of market value

Background

Section 23(3) provides a formula for determining how expenses and contributions are to be apportioned at a fundraising function for the convenience of the political entity hosting the event. Section 23(4) contradicts the approach taken in the previous section by specifying that the price paid at a fund-raising function in excess of the market value at that time for goods or services received is considered to be a contribution. Section 23(5) reiterates what is stated in section 23(4) but is more general in that it does not refer specifically to fundraising functions.

Recommendations Relevant Section: 23

a. Repeal section 23(4).

b. Remove section 23(5) from the section dealing specifically with fund-raising functions and insert elsewhere in Part 3 of the EFCD Act which deals with contributions. This section will have to be expanded to clarify that the deeming provision applies to a gift of goods or services "to the registered candidate, constituency association or party that received the goods or services."

13. Receipts for contributions

Background

Official receipts for contributions are numbered for control purposes and must contain certain information to aid in assessing compliance with the EFCD Act. Where receipts are required to be issued for contributions to a registered party, registered constituency association or registered candidate, the EFCD Act should clearly stipulate that the form of such receipts is to be prescribed by the Chief Electoral Officer and that the receipts themselves are to be obtained from the Chief Electoral Officer.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 33

a. Official receipts for contributions should be prescribed by the Chief Electoral Officer and obtained from the Chief Electoral Officer.

14. Consequence of not filing financial statements

Background

Section 44 describes the process for the Office of the Chief Electoral Officer and the Legislature to follow when a candidate does not file financial statements, but does not speak to the penalties that the candidate and his/her chief financial officer may face for breaching this requirement. Section 57 of the Election Act describes the penalties.

Recommendation

Relevant Sections: 44 of the EFCD Act; 56 and 57 of the Election Act.

a. The consequence of failing to file financial statements outlined in section 57 of the Election Act should be added to section 44 of the EFCD Act. Adding this section may require some additional definitions to the EFCD Act.

15. Contact information for political entities

Background

The Chief Electoral Officer is required to maintain a register of political parties, constituency associations, and candidates which includes names of the various positions within the organizations or campaigns and the financial institution used. During the course of business, there are several occasions where the Chief Electoral Officer must contact these organizations or individuals to request information or remind individuals of reporting requirements. Constituency associations and candidates are only required to provide the name of the financial institution used to deposit contributions. The register information to be maintained should be expanded to include information such as addresses, phone numbers and other contact information, as well as information regarding all financial institutions used by these entities.

Recommendations

Relevant Sections: 7(1), 8(2), 9(2)(c)

a. Authorize the Chief Electoral Officer to prescribe the type of contact information to be supplied by registered political parties, registered constituency associations, and registered candidates.

b. Considering the relatively short duration of the campaign period, require registered candidates to provide updated contact information to the Chief Electoral Officer within 14 days of any changes.

16. Access to documents

Background

Section 11(1) is an access provision which is intended to permit public inspection of all documents filed under the EFCD Act. Unfortunately, the section refers to, "All documents filed with the Chief Electoral Officer…" The section should be amended to avoid any suggestion that it applies to documents filed under the Election Act, which are not automatically public documents.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 11(1)

a. Delete the words "with the Chief Electoral Officer" and replace with "under this Act" in section 11(1).

17. Missing words

Recommendation Relevant Section: 42(2)

a. Section 42(2) needs the words "to be in" inserted before the word "compliance".

18. Section 48 heading

Background

The section heading of 48(1) reads "Failure to provide audited statements". The section refers to annual and election financial statements filed by political parties which must be accompanied by an audit report, but also to financial statements filed by candidates and constituency associations which are not required to be audited.

Recommendation Relevant Section: 48

a. Delete the word "audited" in section 48 heading.

Note: Percentage of voter turnout includes rejected and declined ballots, in addition to valid ballots cast, as reflected in the poll-by-poll results commencing on page 169. Names appear in the order and as recorded on ballots. Names in bold print represent elected candidates. Percentage of voter turnout may not sum to 100% due to rounding.

Voter turnout is calculated based on the elector count on the post-polling day Lists of Electors. These Lists include the number of names on the Lists of Electors after the target enumeration, with the additions of elector information from the revision period, online registrations and polling day swear-ins. Names of duplicated, relocated and deceased electors have been removed to provide a more accurate number of names on the Lists of Electors.

2008 VOTER TURNOUT

Voter turnout can be calculated in a number of different ways. One way is by comparing the number of ballots cast to the number of names on the List of Electors at the close of polls on polling day. This is how turnout has been calculated for past elections. However, the number of names on the polling day Lists of Electors, while readily available, is known to include numerous duplicates, since some electors appear at both old and new addresses, in the case of recent moves.

Presentation of voter turnout using the polling day Lists of Electors continues on the Statements of Official Results which follow, to reflect information submitted by Returning Officers.

The following table provides voter turnout using statistics from the post-polling day Lists of Electors which have duplicates removed. This method of calculation is more accurate since it accounts for the number of electors, without duplication. Similar data is presented on page 158 for the 2001 and 2004 general elections.

2008 STATEMENTS OF OFFICIAL RESULTS

The following poll-by-poll results have been taken directly from the Statements of Official Results completed by Returning Officers in the 83 electoral divisions across the province.

The maps shown are those described by the Electoral Divisions Act. The polling subdivision numbers refer to geographic areas identified on each of the maps.

Poll-by-poll results include the number of valid ballots cast for each candidate, along with the number of rejected, spoiled and declined ballots.

- A valid ballot is one that is clearly marked for one candidate in accordance with section 111 of the Election Act (the Act).
- A rejected ballot is one that is not counted in accordance with section 111(5) of the Act. Election officers reject ballots in a number of specific situations, including situations in which the elector's intent is unclear, no candidate or more than one candidate is selected, or when readily identifying marks are added.

  A Special Ballot returned after the close of polls on polling day is rejected in accordance with section 119 of the Act.
- A spoiled ballot is one that is marked incorrectly by an elector, who then obtains a replacement ballot from the deputy returning officer in accordance with section 102 of the Act. Spoiled ballots are not placed in the ballot box for counting.
- A declined ballot is one that is returned by an elector who declines to vote for any candidate listed on the ballot, in accordance with section 107 of the Act.

Poll-by-poll results display the number of eligible electors, including all electors who were on the February 2008 List of Electors, those who were added during the target enumeration and Revision Period, and those who were added by swearing in on polling day. The percentage of voter turnout is calculated on a poll-by-poll basis using the total number of eligible electors at the close of polls on polling day. As indicated previously, the number of eligible electors that appeared on polling day is known to include numerous duplicates, since some electors appear at both old and new addresses.

The percentage of voter turnout was provided on an electoral division basis, on pages 166 through 168, using the total number of eligible electors on the post-polling day Lists of Electors. This calculation is more accurate because the names of electors who have moved, deceased or appear in duplicate have been removed to derive the actual number of eligible electors.
